Infantrymen Hold Off Huge North Viet Force

Bombers Aid Fight Against Human Wave

SAIGON (AP) — Units of the U.S. 4th Infantry Division withstood human wave assaults by North Vietnamese regulars charging through jungle and elephant grass near the Cambodian border Friday night and Saturday.

The fighting was the division's first major action of the war.

An American spokesman said U.S. casualties were light overall and moderate for one of the companies involved in the battle 230 miles north of Saigon.

American casualties at first had been described as moderate, indicating the companies involved were heavily mauled.

The infantrymen were helped by B52 bombers from Guam and by other planes.

Lull Reported
Fighting died down Sunday. There was no contact reported from the battle sector near the Plei Djereng special forces — Green Beret — camp.

Headquarters said the number of North Vietnamese killed rose to 49 from Saturday's fighting and that U.S. troops had captured two Communist soldiers.

The fighting involved units of the 4th — Ivy — Division, which arrived in Viet Nam during August and September.

On Friday night and Saturday, two companies of the 4th Division's 8th Infantry Regiment were hit by a series of North Vietnamese attacks.

Three U.S. helicopters, one of them evacuating wounded, were shot down.

It was the first time since early this month that the North Vietnamese engaged Americans in any big action.

The battle set off speculation in Saigon that the attacks on the untried Americans marked the opening of a drive by North Viet Nam in the hope of influencing congressional elections in the United States Nov. 8.

It came as President Johnson, in Thailand, appealed to Hanoi to come to a peace conference.

Light Action Seen
Elsewhere in South Viet Nam, no other fighting of consequence was reported by the U.S. and South Vietnamese commands Sunday.

Troops of the U.S. 196th Light Infantry Brigade reported uncovering one of the biggest rice caches of the war.

They found 420 tons of rice 45 miles northwest of Saigon in Tay Ninh Province, long a Viet Cong stronghold.

A spokesman said that nearly all the rice will be distributed to Vietnamese villagers. The U.S. troops also found 25 tons of salt and eight large drums of gasoline.

Air 24 Pilots Died In Tragedy

WASHINGTON (AP) — The loss of at least 24 pilots in the fire last week aboard the aircraft carrier Oriskany has added new urgency to a critical Navy problem — the shortage of aircraft carrier attack pilots.

Sources said the Navy now is operating with about 2,000 carrier pilots, 750 short of established goals.

Even before the Oriskany fire it was learned, the Navy had estimated that, at present attrition rates, by early 1968 it would become necessary to reduce the number of combat missions over North Viet Nam or order fliers to serve beyond the present limit of two six-month tours.

May Call Reserves
Many Navy officers believe the situation is so acute that only a selective callup of Reserve pilots can prevent a Viet Nam slowdown.

"We have a combination of lower retention rates with heavier losses," one source said. "It's pretty bad and getting worse."

Although the Navy insists all Viet Nam obligations are being met, there are indications that even the aircraft squadrons deployed on carriers off Viet Nam are not fully manned.

Sources said the "00-pilot carrier units are often six or seven men short.

Because of this, many pilots have been flying two combat

LBJ Hails Malaysian Prosperity

KUALA LUMPUR, Malaysia (AP) — President Johnson congratulated Malaysia Sunday for building "a free and prospering country that can relieve the poverty and the apathy upon which communism thrives."

In an arrival speech, the first American president to visit Malaysia recalled the long war against Communist guerrillas in Malaya, saying "You valiantly subdued a Communist insurgency in your nation."

"Your achievement in this respect, I believe, has the greatest significance for our struggle in Viet Nam today," he declared.

"You have shown that military action can stop Communist aggression and that while the aggression is being stopped — and even more strongly when it is stopped — the peace, as well as the war can be won."

"Offers Hope"
The President said Malaysia's example "offers us hope for the future."

Waiting at Subang National Airport to greet Johnson were King Ismail Nasiruddin and Prime Minister Abdul Rahman, along with a host of other officials.

Crowds turned out in answer to the government radio's exhortation for "something special in our welcome to show our appreciation of the sacrifice which so many young Americans have made in Asia."

About 4,000 policemen, backed by numerous national reservists, patrolled the streets to guard against anti-American demonstrations.

Russians Gain First Photos Of Lunar Surface

MOSCOW (AP) — A camera eye aboard an unmanned Soviet satellite clicked off pictures of the moon from lunar orbit Saturday, apparently to help choose a site for landing men on the moon.

The pictures were the first successfully transmitted to earth from an orbiting Soviet moon probe, duplicating a similar American feat in August.

Two of the Soviet pictures appeared sharp and clear on Moscow television less than an hour after the announcement that the spacecraft, Luna 12, was photographing the moon.

Luna 12 is the third Soviet satellite to orbit the moon this year. Luna 10, the first man-made moon satellite, took no pictures. Luna 11 apparently tried to transmit picture signals without success. Britain's Jodrell Bank Observatory picked up scrambled picture signals from it in August.

Relayed Over TV
Moscow television showed two pictures of the moon's surface taken by Luna 12. Moon craters and light and dark areas of the lunar terrain were clearly visible on both.

The official announcement said the closest Luna 12 comes to the moon is 58 miles. Its far point is 940 miles. America's Lunar Orbiter 1, the first satellite to photograph the moon from lunar orbit, flew closer, to within 36 miles, in August.

The United States announced that Lunar Orbiter 1 crashed on command into the back side of the moon Saturday to keep its radio signals from interfering with a new American moon probe set for next month. Luna 12 apparently was taking pictures at the time America ended the lunar orbiter flight but the Soviet announcement said nothing about photographing the crash.

The Russians announced no specific further missions for Luna 12 beside picture taking and reporting on the conditions of near lunar space.

Up To Committee
That resolution — drafted by France and sponsored by 66 Western, nonaligned and Communist countries — is now before the assembly's budgetary committee.

The informants, connected with that committee, forecast that it would be recommended by the committee Monday and adopted by the assembly Wednesday.

Unconfirmed speculation was that the French contribution would amount to about $17 million. The total deficit is estimated to be between $30 million and $50 million.

Queen Elizabeth Views Scene Of Welch Disaster

ABERFAN, Wales (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II toured the Welsh disaster village of Aberfan Saturday and said afterward: "All I could give them was my understanding and sympathy as a mother."

There were no flags flying, there was no parade, no pomp for this royal visit.

The sad-faced queen and her husband, Prince Philip, spent about 30 minutes in the home of Jim Williams, 61, a former miner who lost seven relatives in the Oct. 21 coal slag avalanche.

Diggers have recovered 147 bodies — mostly children — from the black sludge which crushed Pantglas Junior School and 17 houses. Ten or more people are missing, making a feared death toll of about 160.

Little hope is held of finding any more bodies.

Earth clearing operations were still going on as the royal party arrived. The queen and Philip drove past small pockets of silent spectators to the hillside cemetery where 81 children were buried Thursday in two 60-foot long trench graves. Tears glistened in the queen's blue eyes as she gazed down at the mass graves.

She and Philip placed a wreath among the others fringing the graves, then stood for a moment in silence with heads bowed. They have four children.

BRECKENRIDGE, Tex. (AP) — Dist. Judge H. Griffin ruled Saturday that A. Otis Birch, 95, deaf and almost blind, was not being restrained of his liberties by his bride of four days, Pearl Choate Birch, who had been his nurse since 1963.

An attorney for Mrs. Martha Tulley, a niece of Birch, said he would appeal the decision. He also said he was "contemplating a petition for a writ of habeas corpus in federal district court at Abilene, Tex."

It did not matter to him, Birch said, that the 205-pound Mrs. Birch served a lengthy murder sentence. The millionaire philanthropist repeated in court that he did not want to return to California, where he once lived in South Pasadena.

Birch, one-time oilman and citrus grower, testified at what in effect was a custody hearing pitting his new wife against his relatives and friends.

The marriage prompted friends and kin to determine whether he was being held involuntarily by the new Mrs. Birch.

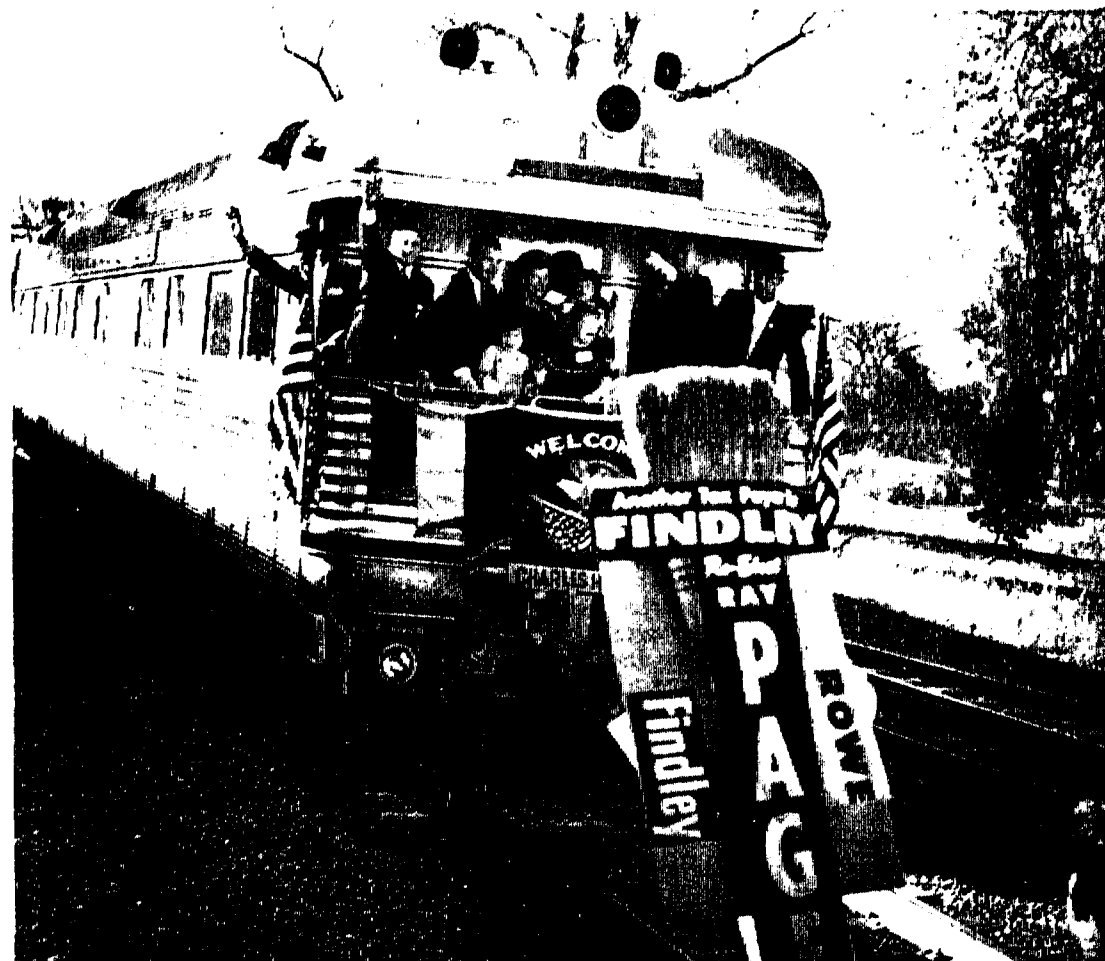

In testifying, the questions and answers went this way: "Is Pearl Choate Birch holding you against your will?" "No, she is not."

"Assuming the judge told you you were free to go anywhere you wanted to, where would you go?"

"I would go to 1213 West First St., Breckenridge, Tex." This is where he and Mrs. Birch are residing.

Mrs. Birch said she and her philanthropist bridegroom will continue to reside in Breckenridge, a West Texas oil town.

Birch testified he does not want to return to his California home because, he declared in a loud, clear voice, the authorities want him to take a sanity test.

LBJ Renews Bid For Viet Peace

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — President Johnson ended his three-day visit to Thailand Sunday and flew to Kuala Lumpur, Malaysia, on the next-to-last leg of his 31,000-mile Asian tour.

Before taking off from Bangkok's Don Muang military airport, Johnson held brief last-minute talks with Prime Minister Thanom Kittikachorn and Foreign Minister Thanat Khoman.

Thailand's Queen Sirikit was too ill to drive to the airport to bid Johnson and Lady Bird farewell. She has had a cold and fever since Friday but attended all the formal functions for the U.S. chief executive and his wife.

The president's visit ended with a gala party Saturday night that followed a working session on how to combat the Communist threat to Thailand.

Johnson also renewed his bid to North Viet Nam for a peace conference. And he signed into law a Congress-passed International Education Act aimed at improving education in international affairs.

The party was for jazz-loving King Bhumibol Adulyadej and Queen Sirikit, hosts to the President and Mrs. Johnson at a highly formal state banquet Friday night.

For the occasion, Johnson summoned from the United States famed saxophonist Stan Getz to play for the king — himself a saxophone and clarinet man who has sat in with many international jazz combos.

The serious diplomatic business, before Johnson's departure Sunday for Malaysia, was conducted during an hour-long session at Government House with Prime Minister Thanom Kittikachorn.

Informants said afterwards the President praised the Thai leadership for its programs to better the living standard of the kingdom's 33 million people, particularly in the northeastern areas where the Communist terrorist threat is greatest.

Thanom said the United States is substantially boosting its military aid to Thailand. The projected arms assistance figure for fiscal 1967 was listed by other informants at $60 million up $20 million from fiscal 1966.

Johnson and Thanom, who is defense minister and a field marshal as well as government head, apparently agreed that the Communist threat should be met early lest it expand further.

"Viet Nam is not the only target of Communist aggression," the President was quoted as telling the prime minister.

Johnson also said he would order Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Ambassador Graham Martin to confer on potential U.S. help for Thailand's five-year economic plan. U.S. economic aid now stands at about $45 million a year.

In military aid, Thanom said Thailand wants increased assistance for transportation and telecommunication items.

Johnson's peace bid to North Viet Nam was made in a speech at Chulalongkorn University, where he was given an honorary degree of doctor of political science.

"I say to the leaders in Hanoi: Let us lay aside our arms and sit down together at the table of reason," Johnson said.

"Let us renounce the works of death — and take up, instead, the tasks of the living."

While on stage at the university ceremony, Johnson signed the International Education Act which Congress passed just before he set off on his 31,000-mile seven-nation Far Eastern tour.

Urge Republicans To Take A Moderate Racial Stand

WASHINGTON (AP) — Two organizations claiming progressive labels urged Saturday night that Republican candidates in the South preach racial moderation in an effort to defeat segregationist Democrats. One said failure to do so will be costly to the party.

Republicans for Progress and the Ripon Society said in a joint statement that victories of segregationists in Democratic gubernatorial primaries in Georgia, Arkansas, Maryland and Alabama "have provided the Republican party with an unparalleled opportunity to rally the forces of the future in the South."

Republicans for Progress and the Ripon Society said in a joint statement that victories of segregationists in Democratic gubernatorial primaries in Georgia, Arkansas, Maryland and Alabama "have provided the Republican party with an unparalleled opportunity to rally the forces of the future in the South."

Republicans for Progress is a GOP citizens organization headed by Charles P. Taft of Cincinnati. It includes former members of the Eisenhower administration.

The Ripon Society, with headquarters in Cambridge, Mass., describes itself as "a group of young, progressive Republican intellectuals, professional men and activists."

In a separate news letter, the Ripon group criticized the Republican leaders of the House and Senate for not coming up with any alternatives to President Johnson's "Great Society" programs.

Noting the vote of the House Republican Conference to hold Johnson "personally responsible" for the Viet Nam war, the newsletter said it "seemed an act of cowardice for Republicans in the House to disassociate themselves from action they once clamorously approved and now cannot improve upon."

The Ripon group said Republicans will be digging their political graves in the South if they

Permits Nuns To Give Each Other Communion

By BENNET M. BOLTON
VATICAN CITY (AP) — Recent papal permission for nuns to give each other Communion in regions lacking priests is expected to spark a renewed cry for women priests.

An ordained female priesthood in the Roman Catholic Church is the ultimate goal of at least one women's group. Some Catholic women smart under a feeling of secondary status within Church law — and the pontiff's decision on the nuns could be used to argue for further concessions.

Pope Paul VI ruled that any Mother Superior in a mission-land convent could distribute the sacrament if no priest was available. But he said it must be done within the convent, only for other nuns, only for as long as a priest is absent, and without any power to consecrate the Communion bread.

Such consecration forms the heart of the Roman Catholic Mass and is the special function of the priest. Latin-American bishops, especially from Brazil and Chile, had asked during the Vatican Ecumenical Council that missionary priests be allowed to consecrate many Communion hosts and leave them behind at convents for the nuns to use.

Pressure for steps far beyond that were exerted in 1965 during the final months of the council by the St. Joan's International Alliance, a suffragette group for women drive. Today its 2,000 members are fighting for feminine equality in the Church.

Their literature and lectures say the alliance realizes that "only in the fullness of time and when the Church is ready" will women be allowed to receive sacred orders and perform the ministries of priests — hear Mass, give sacraments, hear confession.

Meanwhile, they are busy with a drumfire of reminders and an intermediate campaign seeking removal of alleged inequities.

For example, the London-based Alliance rails against a number of remarks in the epistles of St. Paul which hold women as inferiors. It chafes at early Church writers, like the 3rd-century theologian Origen, who described women as deficient in reason, ignorant and unreliable.

But few theologians at the Vatican expect to see women priests in the Church for years to come — if ever. They regard the priestly vocation as applying best to men because of its nature and demands.

One critic likes to cite as his favorite argument against women priests:

"How many women can you think of who, despite the seal of the confessional, would be willing to tell their sins to another woman?"

Reither On Beardstown

By Virgil Reither
BEARDSTOWN — Harold Lashbrook, who reached his 65th birthday October 21, will go on retirement Nov. 1 after 31 years and 10 months of employment at the Beardstown Mills. He is now on vacation.

"I'm not a fisherman" Lashbrook said "so I don't know exactly what I'll do as a retiree. But I'm going to rest up for a while that's for sure."

'You're Spy' Cry Cong Ripping Nun's Habit

By HUGH A. MULLIGAN
PHU BINH, South Viet Nam (AP) — Sister Rosa's long night of suffering began just as school let out. The laughter of her first-graders was echoing down the road when the Viet Cong appeared in the doorway.

"You're a spy," they shouted. They ripped off her nun's habit, took her crucifix, gave her some black pajamas just like theirs and led her blindfolded out of the village of Duc My in the Mekong Delta.

It was four days before last Christmas. The nun, 64, walked most of the night along a jagged trail. She knew it was well after midnight when they entered the bleak compound because they removed her blindfold just as the moon was setting. Then they took her rosary, clamped on handcuffs and chained her, with 21 other prisoners, to a metal bar that ran the length of the low-ceilinged thatched hut.

So began the long days of chopping wood and washing rice, and the long silent nights, and the weeks and months of never being allowed to talk to anyone, of being forbidden to kneel in prayer and having to listen to propaganda lectures against her church.

What had she done? The first of her many interrogators supplied the only clues with his opening two questions. Those English books she used in the school, they were supplied by the government, weren't they? And hadn't two of the younger nuns been seen in town buying bolts of clothing with American money?

One day this week, when the number of men and women chained to the long bar had reached 35, there was feverish activity among the guards. They hurried half the prisoners into sampans and promised to return for the rest.

That afternoon, advance elements of the 9th Division of the South Vietnamese army, on a sweep through Vinh Binh Province, overran the Viet Cong base camp and found 18 handcuffed, blindfolded prisoners.

Sister Rosa sat in the welcome sunlight, rubbing the red raw wrists where the handcuffs had been, remembering it all.

Children were laughing and playing in the school yard outside her temporary quarters at the South Vietnamese army dependents' school.

Sister Rosa, whose Vietnamese name is Trinh Thi Guong, remembered being moved from camp to camp during her 10 months' imprisonment, sometimes on foot, sometimes by sampan. She remembers the priest who smiled a faint smile of recognition, then went off to die of scurvy. She remembers another priest who was led down the road with three other prisoners but never returned with them. She remembers the woman who died in childbirth, and the young Cambodian boy whose stomach bloated from bad rice so that he died a slow death in irons.

Business Mirror

By CHARLES C. Cain
AP Business News Writer
DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Friday took the wraps off some of its top-secret ideas for propelling autos of the future. The dream car ideas ranged from new-type electric batteries to fuel cells, and from gas turbines to a sterling thermal heat engine. GM's top engineering and research brass made it plain to newsmen that none of the new power units was likely to be in general use on highways within the immediate future.

Much of GM's program at the firm's huge technical center in suburban Warren centered on showing operating, road models of the new power plant ideas. Newsmen were given an opportunity to ride in a 1966 Corvair powered with 13 trays of silver-zinc batteries which gave the newly named Electrova a top speed of 80 miles an hour and a range of 40 to 80 miles on a battery charge.

They saw an Electrovan, a converted GMC van powered with hydrogen-oxygen fuel cells whoosh by.

GM's decision to unveil some of its best-kept secrets came less than a month after Ford made page one news with its disclosure that it was experimenting with a new-type sodium-sulfur battery which might bring the electric auto back.

Ford said it hoped to have two experimental cars in operation with the new-type batteries within five years. It predicted the 500-pound battery would give a standard Ford Falcon a 134-mile range at a 40-mile speed.

Ford's experimental battery models shown to newsmen were tiny and generated only enough current to light a small string of electric light bulbs or to run a small motor.

GM's executive vice president, Edward N. Cole, pointed out in remarks prepared for Friday's briefing for newsmen that GM had been testing the Electrova car on its proving grounds since 1964 and that the Electrovan also had chalked up many miles in test runs. He said GM had been experimenting with battery-operated vehicles since 1956.

Dr. Lawrence Hafstad, GM vice president-research, cautioned that the internal combustion engine now used in autos has built up a good record and that it would be tough to displace.

Harry Barr, GM vice president-engineering, added, "Our mission today is to show you that electric vehicle propulsion is technically possible. That still does not answer the question as to when it would be economically feasible or commercially acceptable from a performance standpoint. We declined to be oracles. We do not know all the answers at this time."

Hafstad described the two electric systems as:

1. A system where the fuel is carried in tanks and burned electrochemically in an energy converter — the fuel cell. GM officials said the two elements, hydrogen and oxygen, had some elements of danger from possible fire or explosion.

2. A system in which the fuel, or source of energy, is stored within the energy converter itself and which has the feature of being rechargeable — the electric battery system.

The weight of the electric battery and fuel cell power plants provided some problems, GM officials said.

They gave tables to show the comparative performance characteristics of the new power plants and the conventional gasoline powered vehicles.

The Electrovan weight is 7,100 pounds; the GMC Van 3,280 pounds. The power train weight is 3,650 pounds against 870 pounds in the van.

The Electrova weight is 3,400 pounds, the Corvair 2,600 lbs.

The power train weight 1,230 pounds against 610 pounds for the Corvair.

Four of five Boy Scout Troop 107 patrols participating in the recent district camporee received "A" ratings. Two of the patrols finished in the top three with the Seagull patrol receiving first place and Tiger patrol tied for second.

Troop officers made final preparations for the camporee at a meeting held Oct. 5. The board of review also met that evening and determined that scout Jim Bonneau has passed first class requirements.

Bill Horsley will also work to hold down the rising crime rate. Every six minutes, another crime is committed in our state. In 1965, Bill Horsley supported new laws to take the handcuffs off the policeman and put them on the criminal. He will work for these laws again next year as your Senator.

Religion In The News

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "The reformed church is always reforming."

This was the motto of the 16th Century Protestant Reformation, and as churches marked its 449th anniversary this week-end, there were differing attitudes as to just what they should be doing about it now.

"Change," some urge. But others insist, "Preserve."

The Rev. Dr. Charles S. Anderson, a church historian of Luther Theological Seminary, St. Paul, Minn., says these two directly opposing views are at work among contemporary Christians, both Protestants and Roman Catholics.

Some Christians, he says, maintain that they have the truth and the correct interpretation of it, and "what we need, therefore, is not reform, but a return to the solid bedrock upon which our fathers stood."

Others maintain that the church "must always be in the process of reform in a changing world."

This doesn't mean altering the "basic message," he adds, but renewing a "dynamic relationship" of Christ and people in the present age.

As part of the observance of "Reformation Sunday" this weekend, the Lutheran Church in America issued a manifesto to be read in each of its 6,218 pulpits.

"There is danger that our congregations may have lost touch with the central dynamics of our society," the document says.

"If congregations are static and immobile in spiritual life or in outward service to mankind, the church will be irrelevant to this urban-oriented culture and unable to grasp its many and varied opportunities."

Dr. Anderson, in a new book, "The Reformation, Then and Now," issued by American Lutheran Augsburg Publishing House, says there still "is much that we can learn" both in understanding Christian truth and about means of conveying it.

He says that Roman Catholicism has become "willing to listen and learn" from others, and as a result is "moving into the modern world." This, he says, should "jolt Protestants loose from their concrete ties to the past."

They also "must listen and learn" from others, he adds. "The Reformation, in which many Christians broke from the Roman Catholic church, resulted in more than 250 Protestant denominations, large and small."

Most Protestants, however, are members of the main branches of the Reformation—Lutherans, Presbyterians, Episcopalians, Baptists, Congregationalists. Other large communions, Methodists and Disciples (Christians), arose afterward.

All of them espoused the main tenets of the Reformation, which was touched off when the German Catholic theologian, Martin Luther, on Oct. 31, 1517, posted his 95 theses for debate.

"The church had not acted officially on the points in question and so they were open to debate," Dr. Anderson points out. But the list was reprinted, circulated, and stirred a theological storm that shook history.

Among the Reformation principles:—Justification by faith alone. This phrase means that man's inner character is faulty, and that he cannot justify his salvation—acceptance by God—through his own works, but only by trust in God's grace—loving forgiveness.

Nevertheless, Luther emphasized works, too. As he put it, "Good works do not make a man good, but a man does good works."

Only the Scriptures. This was the Reformation teaching that the Bible alone was the controlling rule of belief and action, taking precedence over ecclesiastical leaders, traditions or councils.

The priesthood of all believers. This is the view that Christian laymen, as well as ordained clergy, are obligated to minister to others and one another. Said Luther: "Those whom we call priests are ministers selected from our midst to act in our name, and their priesthood is our ministry."

Numerous other concepts and approaches—observing the Lord's Supper both with bread and wine, popular distribution of the Bible, worship in vernacular language—also were stimulated by the Reformation.

It "unleashed spiritual forces and principles" still to be worked out even in Protestantism, says the Rev. Dr. Erich H. Heintzen, of the Lutheran Church—Missouri Synod's Springfield seminary. And it "is admittedly still speaking a word to Rome."

FEED SUPPLIES AMPLE

Feed supplies are not so abundant as they were five years ago, but they are more than ample to meet all needs in the year ahead. There was a substantial carryover of old grains. The corn crop is the second largest ever produced. Sorghum grain production is at a new record high.

The carryover of old feed grains (corn, sorghum grain, oats and barley) was some- where around 47 million tons. This amount is equivalent to about 1,700 million bushels of corn. It is slightly more than one-fourth of the total amount of feed grains used and exported in the past year.

On the basis of conditions reported on October 1, the USDA estimated the corn crop at 4.1 billion bushels, which is 2 percent less than the record crop harvested a year ago and is equal to the crop of two years ago.

Poor South; Good North. Severe drought cut the corn crop in the southern parts of the Corn Belt, but the northern areas have bumper crops. Yields are down in Illinois, Missouri and Indiana and also in Kansas, Kentucky, North Carolina and Georgia. But only one of these seven states, North Carolina, has an average yield below the five-year 1960-64 average.

Most northern parts of the Corn Belt escaped the severe heat and drought that scorched the southern areas in the early summer (June 20 - July 15). Record corn yields are reported for Iowa, Nebraska, the Dakotas, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Michigan and Ohio.

Record Sorghum Grain Crop. Sorghum grain production is estimated at 728 million bushels, 9 percent more than last year and 35 percent more than the five-year 1960-64 average.

Texas is the leading producer of sorghum grain, with about 46 percent of the crop this year. There are two other important states — Kansas and Nebraska.

The 1966 oat crop was estimated at 836 million bushels, down 13 percent from last year. The barley crop is listed at 394 million bushels, down 4 percent.

Altogether the four feed grain crops are equal to 5,640 million bushels, corn equivalent, or just 2 percent less than the 1965 production of these crops.

Add the carryover of old feed pool at 5 p.m. Open to all Y.M.C.A. members and their families. Bridge club meets at 7:30 p.m. This club for bridge enthusiasts looking for an enjoyable night of bridge.

grains, and we get a total supply of 7.3 billion bushels, corn equivalent, for this year, or 6 percent less than a year ago.

Prospective Use. If use and exports of feed grains increase 3 percent, the carryover next fall will be around 900 million bushels, corn equivalent. That will be only about one-fifth of a year's requirements. About half of that amount will be needed to keep the "pipelines" full, leaving only 10 percent for a reserve.

It seems likely that many farmers will hold their crops, hoping that the price will go up. If enough farmers do hold, prices will tend to rise, but they may then decide to sell.

Prospects for 1967 crops will soon begin to influence current market prices. Watch for indications of acreages to be planted, and then follow weather developments next spring and summer.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP) — A more comfortable feeling prevailed in Wall Street today as the stock market raked up its third straight weekly advance.

Well-known stock market commentators were quoted as saying that there is a more cheerful economic environment that most people believe the worst is over and that better quality investment issues are more in demand than for months.

A return to basic investment value in the street seemed to be in the making as buyers picked up many of the top quality stocks, utilities and rails.

The Dow Jones industrial average rose 20.66 to 807.96.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks advanced 9.3 to 293.6.

For both averages it was the best advance since the week ended Oct. 15.

For the Dow, it was a rebound of 55.25 from the closing low of 744.32 made Oct. 7. This snapback was about as predicted by technical analysts who now believe the level of the Oct. 7 low should be tested to see if it will hold and provide the springboard for another rally.

If the low survives that test, analysts believe, the market will have formed a fairly trustworthy base.

Volume was 31,894,490 shares compared with 31,750,461 shares last week. Of 1,582 issues traded, 1,055 advanced and 404 declined.

The advance gathered momentum as the week progressed.

Chicago Livestock Market Report

CHICAGO (AP) — Marketings of butcher hogs continued fairly liberal last week but prices showed a little tendency toward firmness until midweek.

The top of $23, paid on three days, compared with a high of $22.25 the previous week. The latter also was the peak on two days last week. The supply of 27,500 for the period was 1,000 more than the previous week but the Friday run of 6,500 head was unusually heavy for that day.

Prices were steady to 75 cents lower for the week with the average estimated at $21.60 compared with $23.82 a year ago. It was the fifth consecutive week of declines.

The market for slaughter steers was steady to 25 cents lower, the eighth consecutive week without an advance although it has held steady at times.

Prices were slightly higher early this week but eased after midweek on slightly increased supply. For the period, the average price was estimated at $25.25, lowest since early August. It compared with $26.49 a year ago.

Woolled slaughter lambs sold steady.

Pope, Council Undecided On Birth Control Issue

VATICAN CITY (AP) — Pope Paul VI, declaring he needs more time to make his decision on birth control, warned anew Saturday that Roman Catholics must still observe Church rules against artificial contraception.

The pontiff told a delegation of Italian gynecologists and obstetricians that neither the judgments of the Vatican Ecumenical Council nor of his own special birth control study commission are definitive on the issue.

He said this showed once more "the enormous complexity and the tremendous gravity of the subject of birth control and requires additional study and this is the reason we have delayed our answer and will have to put it off still for some time more."

His words broke a long papal silence on the subject and dashed expectations that he might soon tell the world's half-billion Roman Catholics whether they may use new means of birth control such as the contraceptive pill. The Church now approves only abstinence, either total or in the rhythm method.

The Pope told the doctors he was repeating what he had said in a speech two years ago: "The thought and the rule of the Church have not changed, they are in effect in the traditional teaching of the church."

The prelates at the Ecumenical Council had agreed in their decree on modern world problems that the physical love of man and wife were of equal importance in a marriage to producing children.

The 800-page report received by the Pope from his birth control commission last June presented diverse views on whether the Church should retain its traditional rules or allow use of the contraceptive pill.

PHILADELPHIA (NEA)—One day Norm Snead of the Philadelphia Eagles completed 30 passes in 35 attempts for 400 yards and eight touchdowns.

None of his passes were intercepted and his play-calling and leadership led to a thorough rout of the Green Bay Packers for the National Football League championship.

So, with two minutes to go, Norm Snead stood in the middle of the field and waved thousands of wildly cheering home town fans to a hush.

And then Snead boomed. Boomed loud and long. He sneered, jeered, flung his arms madly, picked up pieces of turf and flung them into the stands.

Norm Snead laughed at the thought of it, anyway. This is Snead's sixth season as a starting professional quarterback — three with the Washington Redskins and three with the Eagles. And each season, even in his rookie year, he has heard the boos.

"There hasn't been much of it this year," he said, "because we've been winning at home. But if we should lose a couple — perish the thought — I suppose they'll be out again. It's a strange thing, that booing. Yes, I've thought about it a lot. I've had to. It's not an easy thing to get along with, but you've got to learn to do it. Either that or get out of football."

He has wondered how much better he would be if he had 100 per cent support, such as New York Giants fans gave Y. A. Tittle every time he dropped back, even in his last season when he often ended up wearing a pair of defensive ends.

He has wondered if the booing actually may have helped him, infuriating him so that he performed beyond his capabilities. "I really don't know," said Snead, who is 27 and thus is considered to be just reaching the prime years of his career.

"I do know that you can't shut out the sound of booing. You know it's there, regardless of how tense the game might be. When it comes, I have trained myself not to let it affect what I'm doing. I try to please our game plan, myself and my teammates, and not the fans. "If you try to please the fans, you end up throwing the bomb and this just plays into the hands of the defense. I won't say that fans don't know the finer points of the game, because many of them do. But they are the ones who are emotional, and if I got emotional out there, they'd have reason to boo."

Between ball exchanges while the Eagles were beating the Giants, 31-3, Snead watched and listened as another quarterback — Earl Morrall — was booed. "It was a pretty ugly thing," Snead said. "It was a reminder of what I've looked like and felt like a few times." Generally, the rap on Snead is that he's inconsistent. At Washington, he'd put passes in Bobby Mitchell's watchpocket one Sunday and bang them off the back of his head the next. Snead makes it clear he doesn't hold it against the fans for booing him. He even admits there are times when he deserves it—but not as a matter of habit.

ON TARGET is Philadelphia Eagles' quarterback Norm Snead who practices his passing by throwing the ball through a revolving iron hoop.

Ex-Illini Gridder Held For Murder

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—A 37-year-old Delta Air Lines pilot remained in jail Saturday under a $25,000 bond following his indictment by a grand jury on charges of murdering his wife, Lawrence J. Stevens was indicted earlier this week by the Fulton County grand jury in connection with the death of his wife, Mrs. Peggy Stevens, 35. Mrs. Stevens, a mother of two, was fatally shot in the neck last Sunday at the couple's suburban home.

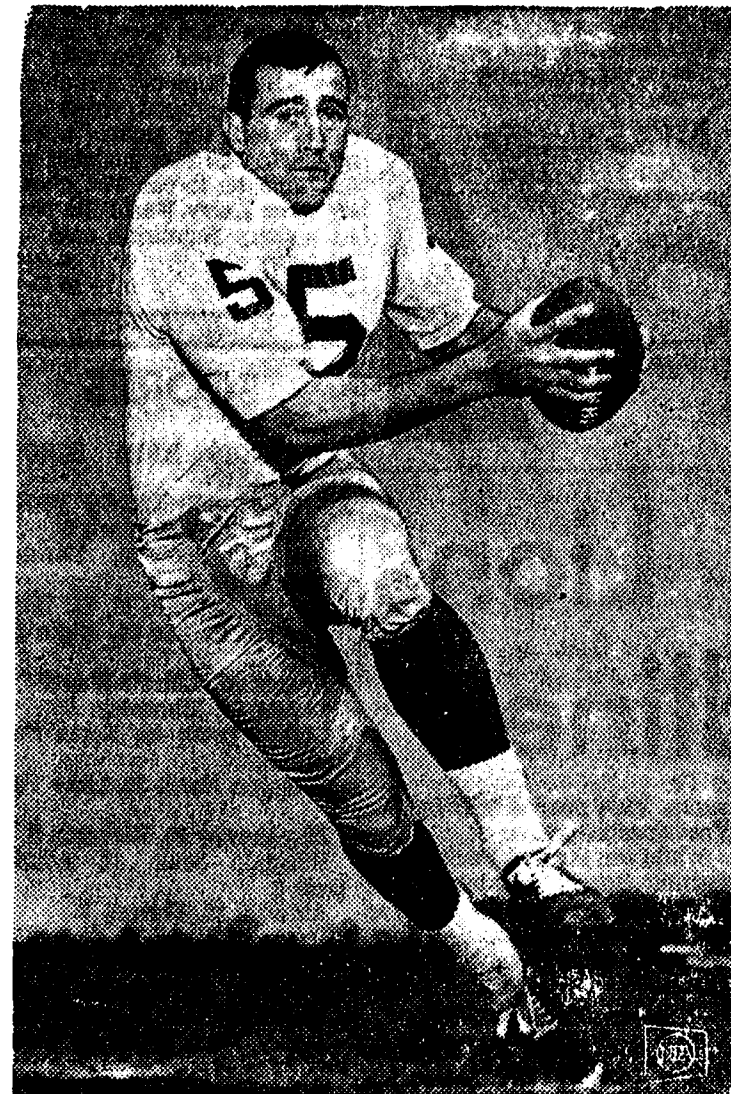

Stevens, a former University of Illinois football player and one-time Robinson, Ill., high school basketball player, told police the shooting was accidental. He said a .22-caliber rifle discharged when it was dropped and the bullet struck his wife as she stepped from a shower.

Who says there are no good fights at the Garden these days? Most exciting brawl of the year, we hear, was the one that took place between match-maker Teddy Brenner and Doc Goldberg, Oscar Bonavena's manager, over the payoff after the Joe Frazier fight. They were even throwing chairs.

That LSU football bribery story isn't all out in the open yet. Rumors flooding the South-east about the FBI compiling a dossier on a former LSU back Mike Epstein, the huge minor league rookie of the year, is spending the fall learning to play the outfield in the Florida Instructional League, so he can fit into the Baltimore lineup—he's not going to displace Boog Powell on first. But after that he faces the toughest decision of his young life. "I just got married," says Mike, "and we've got to decide where we spend the couple of months before spring training, at her home in Stockton, Calif., or with my family in Los Angeles." Guess where they'll go.

Mike, who played fullback at California his sophomore year, says, "I always considered myself a football player first. But I quit when a scout told me there was no chance I could save myself for baseball the way I went into the line."

Jimmy Orr, the veteran flanker of the Baltimore Colts, must be putting me on. Here's his report on the Baltimore sports scene: "The Orioles, by sweeping the impotent Dodgers, held the record for the longest winning streak in the history of the game. Don't tell George Sauer, Jr., that it's a handicap to have a father who's in the Football Hall of Fame. George Sr. was an all-time great fullback for Nebraska and now is the personnel director of the New York Jets, for in war, first in peace, and first whom Junior now holds down on opponents' rosters." — That could be the line used this year by University of Illinois football players about the name Washington.

Three of first six Illini foes had key players named Washington, including two with the League, shuns talking to groups same first name. The trio includes Missouri's huge end Russ Washington, Michigan State's fine pass-receiving end Gene Washington, and Stanford quarterback Gene Washington. — benefit for crippled children.

SPEED DOMINATES IN ATHLETICS

No one factor has dominated the world of sports as much as speed and quickness. Name the game and speed can win in it. The day of size alone has disappeared, perhaps never to return again.

Speed especially holds the key in professional sports, where the world's finest performers in a particular sport are paid for their services. Nowhere does speed dominate more than in pro football, despite the sizes you see on those NFL rosters.

A perfect example is the impression Bob Hayes has made on the game this season. Long acclaimed 'world's fastest human', the Dallas Cowboys' sophomore end is very likely to cause some changes in the game.

Hayes, who has legged the 100-yard dash in 9.1, is the fastest player ever in professional football. He has introduced a speed factor so strong that some think he could well be the first man to force the defense into something akin to the old 'Ted Williams Shift' of baseball, where an entire infield and outfield shifted to the direction of Williams' power. In football this would perhaps mean shifting a defense directly at Hayes' side.

Bob Hayes

The Florida A&M former great is already forcing defenses to stand up and take notice. Dallas coach Tom Landry says Hayes is forcing defensive backs to think again about pursuit angles. "The old angles just don't work against Hayes," says Landry.

The personable Hayes, whom the St. Louis Cardinals held to three catches and 24 yards two weeks ago by knocking him out of his patterns some of the time and praying the rest, has some ready observations on his much publicized speed.

"I try to vary my speed. I've only run one pattern full speed, that was in an exhibition game at Tulsa last year. I let fly once I catch the ball, but not often when I'm still on the pattern. A Zig-Out is my favorite pattern, where I go down ten yards, cut in about five yards, then go outside the halfback and turn it in. I use three different strides on the pattern and got five touchdowns on it last year.

Hayes also says that speed alone is not that remarkable in pro football. "I know speed won't do it for me, I have to spend a lot of time practicing on moves." Hayes was asked if he had ever been surprised when sheer speed didn't work for him, if he had ever turned it on and found a defensive back still with him. "Not a back, but a linebacker—Olen Underwood of the Giants. I took a quick flat pass and went downfield and he caught me at an angle."

The last time Hayes was beaten by a sprinter was as a sophomore at Florida A&M in the NAIA finals when Gayle Sayers' brother, Roger, nipped him in 9.6. Hayes said he hadn't felt too good before the meet, and discovered he had a 104-degree fever later. The only other time Hayes was ever beaten was as a sophomore in high school. A teammate, Alfred Austin beat him, again in 9.6.

TUSCALOOSA, Ala. (AP)—Unbeaten Alabama used three touchdowns passes by senior quarterback Wayne Trimble, a second stringer most of the year, to beat Mississippi State 27-14 in a Southeastern Conference football battle Saturday.

Trimble hit end Ray Perkins with a 26-yard scoring pass in the second quarter, connected with Jerry Duncan on a tackle eligible pass in the fourth period, then found Perkins again for a 37-yard scoring pass. Steve Davis boomed field goals of 35 and 31 yards and kicked three extra points as the defending national champions kept their record unblemished with their sixth consecutive win of the season.

State drove for a touchdown in the fourth period after defensive halfback Bill Kaiser intercepted a Tide pass and added another with seconds left in the game.

The Bulldogs' first score was on a three-yard run by wingback Prentiss Calhoun.

Then with three seconds left in the game, quarterback Don Saget threw an 11-yard scoring pass to Calhoun.

EXERCISING HIS OPTION

CONTRACT
James Taylor,
Green BayPackers And Lions
In NFL Headliner

By JACK HAND
Associated Press Sports Writer
Bart Starr and the Green Bay Packers will resume their private feud with the Detroit Lions' pass rushers Sunday in a traditional football battle that normally is reserved for Thanksgiving Day.

Because the Packers objected to being the opponent every year at the same time, and thus doubling up with two games in one week, the National Football League finally agreed to rotate the Lions' Thanksgiving opponents. This year it will be San Francisco's turn.

While the favored Packers are visiting Detroit, two teams that were dropped from the ranks of the unbeaten last week, will be trying to bounce back in other games.

Bears, Cards Monday
St. Louis, upset by Washington, will be at home to the big rough Chicago Bears in a Monday night special to be seen on national (CBS) television. Dallas, losers to Cleveland in a mild shocker last Sunday, will welcome Pittsburgh to the Cotton Bowl on Sunday. All NFL games, except Chicago at St. Louis, will be played Sunday afternoon.

Baltimore, 4-2, will be at Los Angeles 4-3, Cleveland, 4-2 at Atlanta, 0-7, San Francisco, 3-2-1, at Minnesota, 1-4-1, and Washington, 4-3 at Philadelphia, 4-3, New York, 1-5-1, has a bye.

The Packers, 6-1, normally have trouble with the Lions, 4-5, and will be seeing Karl Sweeten, semi-pro successor to injured Milt Plum, for the first time in season play. Green Bay won their first meeting Oct. 2 by a 23-14 score although Lions out-gained them.

Must Stop Sayers
When Chicago, 3-3, travels to St. Louis, 5-1-1, Monday, it will be the first time the teams have met in the Cards' park since they moved from Chicago. Gale Sayers is in high gear and the Bears on the rebound after slow start, are hoping to catch the Cards in letdown after the upset by Washington.

Dallas, 4-1-1, returns after a tie and defeat in last two outings, hoping to take it out on Pittsburgh, 1-4-1, which had a bye last week.

Johnny Unitas needs 217 yards to top Y.A. Tittle's career passing yardage but will settle for enough points to make it six in a row for Baltimore over the Rams who have the top rusher in league in Dick Bass. The Colts still are hanging close to the Packers, while the Rams have dropped to fourth while losing two of three on the road.

Hope To Gain Ground
The Browns hope to close more ground in the Eastern Conference by taking advantage of the winless Falcons whose erratic passing game may lead to Cleveland's league-leading interception total of 20.

The 49ers and Vikings played a 20-20 tie on opening day in San Francisco, Minnesota tying on a Fred Cox field goal with six seconds to go. San Francisco has won three in a row after a slow start. The Vikings still have only one win despite great promise.

The winner of the Washington at Philadelphia game will stay close in the Eastern race. The Redskins upset St. Louis last week and the Eagles have won two straight after being roughed up in Dallas. The game could revolve around a personal duel between Washington's Charley Taylor and Philadelphia's Timmy Brown.

The Cajuns are the descendants of the Acadian refugees, who settled in Louisiana.

Roger Stewart reeled off a 35-yard touchdown run in the fourth quarter to bring the unbeaten JHS freshman team from behind to a narrow 13-7 victory over Quincy Christian Brothers, on the JHS field Saturday morning.

After a defensive-minded opening quarter, in which an 85-yard scoring pass from JHS quarterback Steve Waltrip to Stewart was called back on the first play from scrimmage, CQB took a 7-0 lead early in the second round. Stewart got JHS within 7-6 at halftime by capping a sustained march with a one-yard dive.

Each team was stopped inside the ten of their opponents in the third quarter, before Stewart broke the game open in the closing minutes. Waltrip tossed to Chad Ormiston for the extra point.

JHS is now 6-0-1 on the year, while the losers slipped to 4-3-1.

Cornhuskers
Roll Past
Mizzou, 35-0

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—Eightth-ranked Nebraska rolled past Missouri with a tenuous defense Saturday and ramblé to a surprisingly easy 35-0 Big Eight football victory before a record Memorial Stadium crowd of 65,095.

The regionally televised Cornhusker victory ran Nebraska's regular season win string to 17 games and fortified the Husker bid for a fourth straight conference crown.

Missouri, its own title hopes jolted by a 10-10 tie with Iowa State last week, was left with a 4-2-1 mark for the season—2-1-1 in the loop.

A pair of touchdowns in each of the second and third quarters put the game out of reach of the Tigers and Husker coach Bob Devaney turned the game over to second stringers for a one-touchdown final period assault.

So stiff were Nebraska defenses that Missouri was able to cross the midfield stripe only once before the game's waning moments and that incept second quarter threat was choked off when Larry Wachholtz punted a Gary Kombrink pass.

The Blueboys were not without their chance of score. With 35 seconds remaining on the clock, Denny Watson intercepted a Van Dyne aerial and returned it 29 yards to the Eagle 11 where he was stopped by Fisher. IC drove to the eight, but Bucky Sullivan was thrown for a 13-yard loss to the 21 while trying to pass. Cripe here attempted a field goal which was blocked by a host of onrushing Eagle defenders.

Central Methodist drove to the IC 11 early in the second period, but Watson recovered one of three fumbles to end the threat. Most of the first half was played between the 25's as neither team could really mount a successful drive.

IC opened the second half with eight straight plays over the same spot with Jerry Sapp running the ball. He picked up 32 yards.

The IC defensive unit played extremely well. John Levins, Watson and Mike Herter all looked good at their linebacker spots. Gene Aragana, John Frazier, Doug Hardwick, Marion Owens and Levins played well in the defensive line.

Phil Snowden, who was not expected to play because of an injured neck, Larry Herterick and Rowland shone in the defensive secondary. Watson recovered three fumbles and intercepted a pass. Lavins and Frazier recovered a fumble together, and Rowland also intercepted a pass.

Penalties Hurt
In the first two minutes of the game, the Blueboys picked up 45 yards in penalties for offside and one pass interference, when Snowden leaped high into the air to bat away a pass and then fell on the receiver.

Spencer, 240 pound sophomore, blocked an Ed Price punt in the first quarter and was a thorn in the Blueboys' side for the entire afternoon. Dan Schmitz played well on defense as did Fisher and Ben Ruedseal. Nagle and Pete King played defensive end outstandingly for the Eagles.

The Eagles once faked a quick kick and picked up 14 yards and a first down with Fisher running a reverse. Fullback Sapp played an outstanding game offensively for the Blueboys. He put together two strings of running play-after-play in the second half, picking up considerable yardage.

Sapp Big Gainer
Sapp was the big gainer of the day picking up 82 yards in 25 carries. The Blueboys' speedster, Rowland, was held to 52 yard in 17 tries by the alert Eagle defense.

The Eagles' running ace, Larry Anderson, picked up 80 yards in 26 carries.

The statistics were almost even except for passing and fumbles. Central Methodist hit on 10 of 23 passes for 92 yards, while the Blueboys could only manage three completions in 18 attempts for 13 yards. The Blueboys recovered four loose balls to the Eagles none.

The loss dropped the Blueboys to 2-4 for the year, while the Eagles won their fourth game in seven tries.

GOP Whistle Stop Honors Harris Rowe At Hometown Visit

Charles H. Percy, speaking before 2,000 spectators at the North Church Street railroad crossing Saturday afternoon, said that Sen. Paul Douglas has not made constructive proposals in his campaign for re-election.

Percy's campaign special train, a four-car affair, made a stop in Jacksonville to honor Harris Rowe, Republican candidate for State Treasurer.

The Republican nominee for U.S. Senator told the Jacksonville gathering that his Democratic opponent, "in some of his commercials claims to be 'like Lincoln' but he hasn't been behaving that way."

Percy, whose four-day train tour of downstate Illinois ends today in Chicago, spoke first in Springfield from the old Great Western Railroad station where Abraham Lincoln left Springfield to become president.

"Lincoln, I think, would have been talking about major issues of the time and would have been offering constructive proposals to meet the problems of the people," Percy said.

The GOP candidate said three of his own proposals have received wide support and national attention.

"The all-Asian peace conference, which I suggested last July 2, was intended as a constructive effort to find a way toward peace in Viet Nam and leaders of both parties have found it worthy," he asserted.

Percy said his proposal for a nationwide foundation to facilitate home ownership "similarly has caught the imagination of many Americans in both parties."

Universal pre-school education he added is another goal he has urged "to give all children a good head start toward the kind of quality education that will enable them to fulfill their best potential."

In an earlier appearance at Alton, Percy said if he is elected he would work to promote "every legitimate effort" to reduce the threat of nuclear war and nuclear accident.

In a speech prepared for a stop at Quincy, Percy charged the federal government's "buy and dump" agricultural policies prevented farmers from planning ahead.

He said the government this year "dumped millions of bushels of wheat and corn on the market to beat down farm prices."

"It is now time to begin to move away from government controls and back in the direction of a freer market in all farm products," Percy stated.

Harris Rowe greeted his hometown friends and spoke briefly concerning the issues of his campaign. He welcomed the crowd to the rally and urged

The 'Harvest Special' Important Campaign Machinery For Percy

The "Harvest Special," carrying state Republican candidates throughout downstate Illinois on a four-day swing is an important and well-organized piece of campaign machinery.

"It's typical of Chuck Percy," one rider remarked Saturday during the Springfield-Jacksonville-Quincy leg of the journey, which lasted five hours.

Percy readily admits that he thinks the train has been effective, and well he should, his campaign organization has made it so.

Designed to reach within 50 miles of any downstate community with a newspaper of daily circulation, the Percy staff keeps law and order on the train, while it is moving or stopped for a platform appearance.

Composed of four cars, the train will halt in Chicago today after almost 1,700 miles and 23 scheduled whistle stops.

Two forward cars are Pullmans, carrying members of the press and candidates; the third, a lounge car, while the last one is occupied by the Percy family.

Percy's private car was formerly occupied by Dwight Eisenhower during his campaigns, and after the election took Mamie back to Kansas to visit her mother.

At each whistle stop, special phones are available for newsmen, wishing to call in their stories of the day, and after each stop, Percy will usually make himself available for questions.

Watched Movie Saturday

Saturday afternoon, the Percy family, Mrs. Percy, Sharon and Mark watched a full-length movie, "Gigi" in the private car on Bell & Howell equipment.

Several times, Percy was in the lounge car talking with county chairmen, newsmen, and campaign workers.

Also Saturday, Harris Rowe, candidate for state treasurer, enjoyed the company of his family whom he has not seen for the past two weeks.

Rowe also caught up on a little Central National Life Insurance company business with his secretary Mrs. Mari Shannon, who rode the train from Jacksonville to Quincy.

Rowe and Ray Page, candidate for state superintendent of Public Instruction, were more accessible to the "train crew" Saturday. Also aboard the train were Congressman Paul Findley and Ralph Hahn, candidate for University of Illinois trustee.

Members of the Percy staff, three equipped with walkie-talkie radios to start and stop the train, filter through the train making sure everyone is comfortable and well-stocked with press releases.

City Slums Face Potent New Foe

A Cleveland industrial firm, which in its national advertising has always championed the record and promises of private enterprise against those of welfare statism, is putting its money where its philosophy is.

The Warner & Swasey Co., one of the largest manufacturers of machine tools, has announced that it will invest some $100,000 in a project in the city's decaying Hough section—a name that became a household word across the country in the wake of Negro rioting last summer.

The company will pay for rehabilitating a 40-year-old apartment building in the heart of the area, cutting it back from 18 to 18 suites at a cost of about $8,000 a unit.

When the renovation is completed, the building will be given to a non-profit organization to operate. Present rentals of $85 a month will be maintained. Tenants will be found through a screening process to be set up by Citizens for Better Housing of East Hough.

The company thus becomes the first Cleveland business to involve itself in the physical rescue of Hough. One reason is that the firm is a close neighbor of the area. It is also aware that more than 300 of its skilled workers live in parts of the city threatened by decay.

"With our employees," says company president James C. Hodge "we face all the problems that come when a good neighborhood turns into a slum. I believe these facts demand that we, as a business enterprise, must find new ways to act now to help solve the problem."

Private enterprise alone, of course, no matter how social conscious, cannot tackle the staggering job of renewal needed not only in Cleveland but in every other major city in the land as well. But it is playing an increasingly important role in many communities.

Allying its initiative and innovation with the financial power of local and federal government, business is adding an indispensable third force to the attack on one of the most serious challenges facing 20th-century American society.

American Menu

A Gala Dessert: Cranberries Jubilee

By GAYNOR MADDOX
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

You may not realize it but cranberries are one of the only three native fruits of our hemisphere. The other two are Concord grapes and blueberries.

Of course, no patriotic American would think of serving Thanksgiving turkey without cranberries in one form or another. Cranberry sauce is fine and dandy. But why not serve the traditional cranberries in a festive dessert for a change? No fair-minded turkey would object just as long as they are included in the "big dinner" menu.

Cranberries Jubilee (Makes 8 servings)
1 pound (4 cups) fresh Cape Cod cranberries, rinsed and drained

1 cup orange juice
1 cup sugar
1 tablespoon cornstarch
½ cup brandy

Combine cranberries and orange juice in a saucepan. Mix sugar and cornstarch and stir gradually into cranberry mixture. Bring to a boil, stirring constantly; lower heat and simmer until slightly thickened. Pour mixture into a chafing dish and keep warm. Heat brandy slightly and quickly pour over cranberries. Set aflame and spoon flaming mixture over scoops of vanilla ice cream.

And Date Pie
3 cups fresh cranberries
¾ cup sugar
1-3 cup water
¼ teaspoon salt

1 package (8 ounces) pitted dates
½ teaspoon pure vanilla extract
2 tablespoons butter or margarine

Pastry for 2 crust 9-inch pie
Wash cranberries and place in saucepan with sugar, water and salt. Cover and cook 10 minutes or until cranberries are soft.

Dice dates and add. Stir in vanilla and butter. Cool. Turn into 9-inch pie plate lined with unbaked pastry. Top, in lattice fashion, with ¼-inch strips of pastry, rolled ¼-inch thick.

Trim, turn under and flute edge. Bake in preheated oven (400 degrees) 40 to 45 minutes or until pastry has browned. Cool before serving. One 9-inch pie.

Japan Plans Leap Into Space On Slim Budget

By ALTON BLAKESLEE
AP Science Writer

TOKYO (AP) — To leap into the space age, a nation needs a down payment of $5,000, dedicated effort, and ingenious engineers such as Hideo Itokawa.

This was Japan's formula, anyhow. Now it's apparently only a matter of months before Japan puts an earth satellite into orbit.

The cost will be only $300,000 for the rocket and launching. Japan's space program, already significant, differs in major respects—some by choice, some enforced—from those of the United States, the Soviet Union and other countries.

It is modest but bold. It is scientifically useful. And it is not centralized.

It began 11 years ago with baby rockets, only 9 inches long, fired by impatient Dr. Itokawa of the Institute of Space and Aeronautical Science at the University of Tokyo.

Itokawa is a 5-foot engineer of 33 who joined the university in 1941 because he "was tired of designing airplanes," including the Zero fighter, and "I was interested in jets and rocketry to get higher altitude performance."

By late 1952, when the post-war ban against Japan's engaging in research on aircraft or space was lifting, Itokawa decided to switch to space science again, beginning by begging the government for research funds for rocketry.

"We got our first money, $5,000, in 1953. It was very little, but it was good news. It meant the government would help," he said.

"Now we have an annual budget of about $9 million for space research work."

This is a pittance by Western standards, but a decade of work has produced astonishing progress.

Itokawa's institute, now with 200 engineers, turned out space-research balloons and an upward stair-step progression of ever larger rockets.

The L or Lambda series of rockets, 32 feet high, can push a scientific payload 1,100 miles high. The M or Mu series, a four-stage rocket now being developed, will be able to reach 7,500 miles above earth.

These rockets open the door for satellites marked "Made in Japan."

The Mu series rockets weigh 39 tons, stand more than 70 feet high—taller than the U.S. Minuteman missile equipped with a nuclear warhead.

American and Soviet rockets carrying spacecraft or satellites are launched straight up, and sophisticated guidance curves them into orbital path.

Japan's rockets are fired off at an angle. Left alone, they follow a simple arc back to earth.

The bill for a Mu satellite, rocket and launching, will be about a million dollars Itokawa estimates.

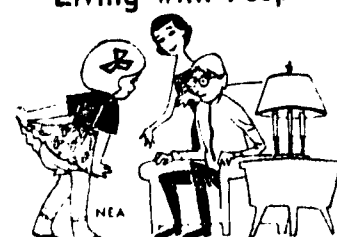

The busy Cape Kennedy of Japan is Uchinura, a complex of facilities on a high forested bluff overlooking the Pacific in southern Kyushu Island.

The science and technology agency is developing a satellite launching center on Tanegashima Island which will use Mu rockets. Various governmental agencies are planning satellite payloads for studies of weather, for communications and navigation.

Japan's defense agency, quite separately, is reported to be developing short-range interceptor-type rockets, the only space program with military purposes.

Dinner Date Etiquette Bugs Platoon

By ANN LANDERS

Dear Ann Landers: A bunch of the guys in my platoon want to know what to do about a problem that bugs a lot of us.

When a guy takes a girl to dinner, is it considered bad manners to tell her that she should go ahead and order whatever she wants and not to worry about the price?

Some of the fellows — me for instance — just happen to like ground steak or fish but we don't want our girls to think that we are ordering it just because it is the cheapest thing on the menu.

I have taken out some great chicks who have looked at the menu and then said, "I'll have whatever you have." I am sure they are trying to be careful with my money.

I like to show a girl a real good time, Ann. What is the proper way to handle this problem? —FORT HOOD, TEXAS

Dear Fort Hood: The best way to do it is let the girl order first. If she insists on waiting to hear what you're going to have, go ahead and tell her that she may not like your choice.

It's how you treat a gal and not what she eats on a date that determines what kind of a time she has, so I wouldn't pay too much attention to whether she orders a sirloin or the spaghetti.

Dear Ann Landers: Please tell me what to do about a husband who will not let me have any money. I have been married to Bruno for 35 years and have been kept completely in the dark about money matters. Also, he has a thing about cash. He won't let me have any.

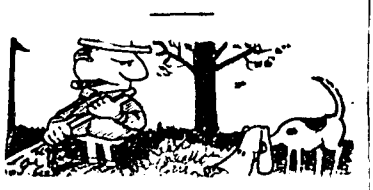

We have a grown family, a lovely home, a new car and a joint checking account. But every bit of cash is in Bruno's wallet—and he takes it to work.

FINDING THE WAY

Bridges to Understanding

By RALPH W. LOEW, D.D.

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

Bridges are beautiful. The architects and engineers of such structures have been able to blend strength with beauty, merging endurance with grace. The Verazano bridge in New York and the Golden Gate bridge in San Francisco are notable symbols of artistry.

Smaller bridges are also delightful. A little swinging bridge in picturesque Bettws-y-Coed in Wales caught our fancy. The quaint, and fast-disappearing wooden-covered bridges in parts of our own country bring nostalgic memories.

Of all of the small bridges, none are more interesting than those tiny, orange-red ones in Japan. Hayakawa, the world-famous semanticist, says that these bridges are symbols of "small talk."

When two friends meet they discuss the weather, their health or some other common interest in which no real information is circulated. It's important small talk. It's a little bridge, enabling two people to meet.

Our problem is that in all too many instances we're content to leave it that way. Fellowship becomes mere small talk, when honest community requires that we take neighborliness out of the slogan-stage. We need to meet on the bridge and then learn to span the differences.

Real fellowship occurs when persons of differing points of view traverse the bridge that stretches from their opposing cliffs and precipices, permitting them to discover a new sense of being bound together. There is commitment and understanding.

In all too many of our cities and communities there are groups which have no Verazano bridge, no swinging bridge, not even a tiny Japanese bridge to cross the gaps of misunderstanding. When the bridges are down, communication is broken. Then, only a fuse is required to set off the explosive and irrational behavior which destroys so many hopes.

Thoreau once said that youth wants to build a bridge to the moon while the middle-aged are content to settle for a woodshed.

Is the person who wants to reach across the gaps of ethnic, racial, cultural or religious groups just a dreamer? Do we have to settle for shacks when there is a possibility of building structures for the meeting of minds?

Who can count the number of riots and disturbances that might have been prevented had someone been willing to build a bridge and then travel it, discovering commitment and understanding.

I like bridges, especially the ones that are able to become the meeting places for those who bring their strength as well as their problems, their hopes as well as their anger.

Those who build the bridges — sometimes those little bridges that span the small ditches of difference — make it possible for men to think and work together. As long as the bridges are up, there's hope!

Don't Show Dependence Or 'Sharks' Will Get You

We do the same thing. Scenting another person's dependence on our good will — that weakness in him — we rush to the kill, too, by making him feel as worthless and unwanted as we can.

So I'm going to say to you exactly what I would say to a daughter of my own who was as hopeful as you:

"We can no more expect other people to do all the approving of us than we can expect them to brush our teeth for us every morning. The responsible thing is to like ourselves enough so as to make other people's liking pleasant but not essential. You lack sufficient self-like to make this possible. You will be a wise girl to see a psychoanalyst who will help you develop it."

You see, we can emerge from childhood with deficient self-appreciation. That's because we spent the childhood with people who, by open or hidden disparagement of us, made us feel ourselves to be a disappointing person. Then, out in the world when we come upon other sharklike people, we, like you, say to ourselves:

"I will be so sweet, so inoffensive and loving to these hostile creatures that they all have to think, 'Oh, isn't she just darling!'"

It doesn't work. The sharks smell our fear of their ill will behind our ingratiating efforts and get even nastier.

So what we need is a psychoanalyst we trust, one who knows how to give us such respect for our PAST efforts to do well that we find ourselves firmly established on a record of self-approving courage instead of wallowing on one of self-condemning failure.

Then the sharks change. They turn into smiling Flipper porpoises. Knowing we no longer need their approval, they come nosing up to us to get pats for themselves.

Wallace Perils Nixon's Hopes

By BRUCE BLOSSAT

Washington Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Richard Nixon's aspirations for the 1968 Republican presidential nomination may be seriously damaged by current and foreseeable political trends in the South.

The harm can come to him mostly from Alabama's Gov. George C. Wallace and his all-but-announced plan to seek the presidency on a third party ticket.

Nixon is, of course, the darling of southern GOP conservative leaders whose prior allegiance was to Barry Goldwater.

Some of them have told this reporter they would favor Nixon for 1968 even if actor Ronald Reagan should win the California governorship big this year from Democratic Gov. Edmund G. (Pat) Brown.

Party professionals have been assuming for months that, if that sentiment holds, Nixon could take to the next convention a bloc of 250 to 300 southern delegates — a very formidable base.

Put together with other avowedly conservative strength around the country, and possibly augmented by upwards of 80 delegates which a "Governor" Reagan might hand him from California, this Nixon southern bloc would place him in major contention.

This delegate power could conceivably be his even if he chose to avoid all presidential primary confrontations against Michigan Gov. George W. Romney, his evident top rival for 1968.

Yet, in the new circumstances prevailing in the South, this whole conception is imperiled.

The southerners' argument is that, leaving out the inexperienced Reagan, Nixon is the nearest thing they can find to the Goldwater they cherished in 1964. From this flows the fur-

Republican most likely to put some southern states in the 1968 election column.

That argument was used to good effect in the Goldwater campaign and he did indeed carry five southern states in 1964.

It does not exactly fall upon deaf ears because Republicans lately have accused themselves of picking up some southern support in presidential voting. From the first Eisenhower race in 1952 to the 1964 test, the GOP has managed to win from 4 to 7 Old South states.

The George Wallace third party candidacy, however, puts it all in grave doubt. Few southern politicians and observers question that the Alabama governor probably could win the electoral votes of the five Deep South states taken by Goldwater—Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia and South Carolina — plus perhaps one or two others.

Nixon might still do well in untypical Florida and Tennessee, but hardly elsewhere.

If this prospect is as real in early 1968 as it seems today, then southern Republicans' argument that "we need Nixon to carry the South" could collapse with a thundering crash. Forces pushing for Romney or some other moderate candidate simply would not give the southern viewpoint credibility. And the sou

Greene Feeders Meet, Hear Allen, Daly

CARROLLTON — Public relations in agriculture was the theme of the talk given by William W. Allen, Secretary of Information of the Illinois Agricultural association, at the 15th annual banquet of the Livestock Feeder's Association of the Greene County Farm Bureau.

The banquet was served in the dining room of the Presbyterian church.

Allen, who was introduced by Gloyd Hoesman, chairman of the Livestock Feeder's association, began his talk by breaking his topic down into bits and by analyzing each lesser topic as he progressed.

He said public relations is the ability of farmers to get along socially and interpret their work and behavior to conform to public interest. Public interest is a mutual understanding between groups rather than individuals.

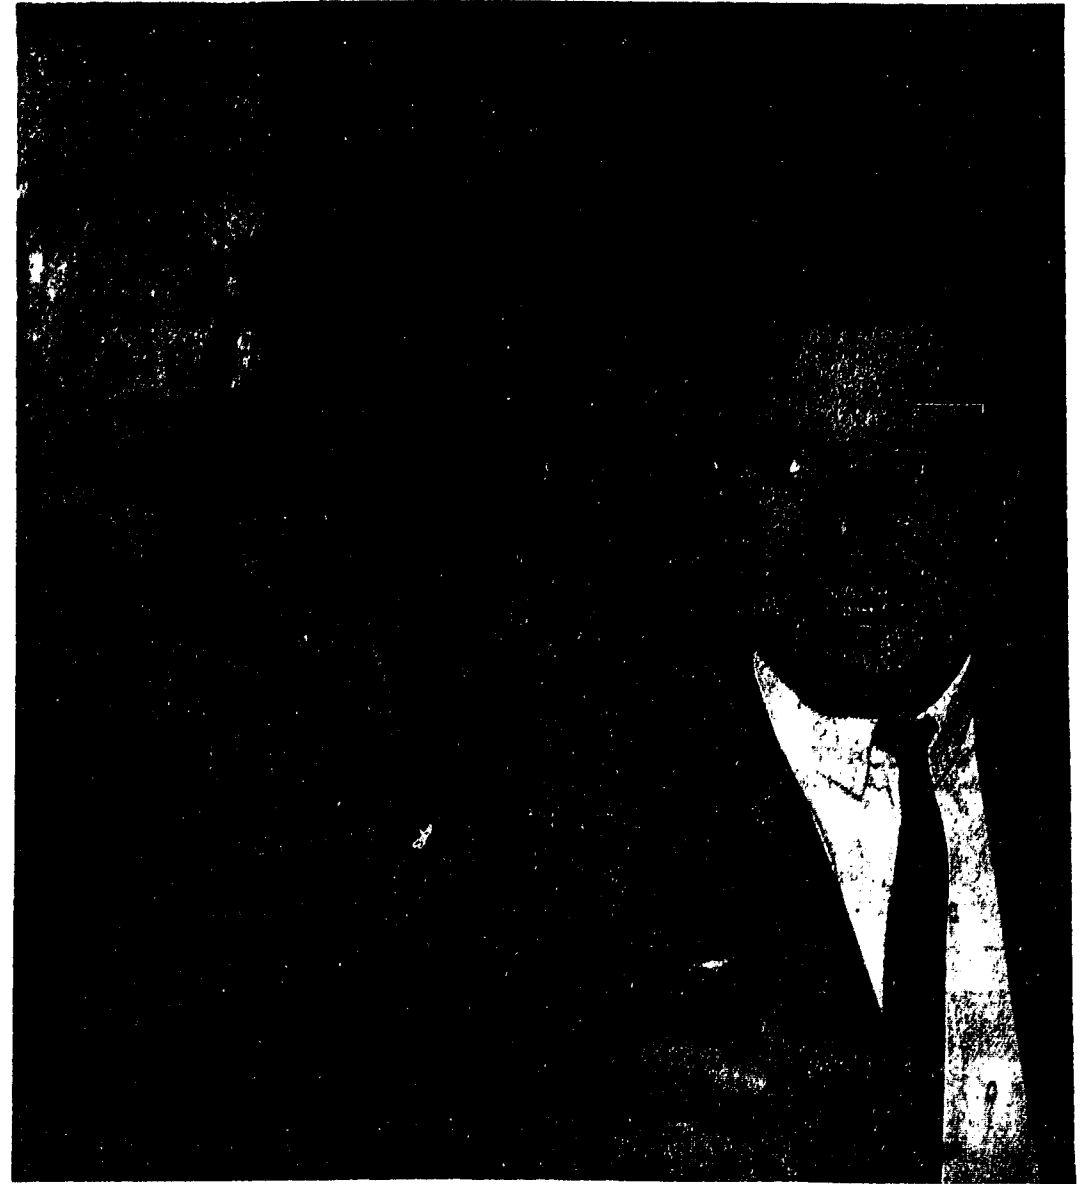

He stated that agriculture is an industry which employs groups of persons and every one who eats foods and wears clothes has an interest in Agriculture. Farmers were urged to establish public relations and understanding with key leaders including teachers, ministers, and other influential people in their areas.

He stated that a farmer is indispensable and is a real representative of private enterprise.

"One of the disadvantages of farming is the farmer never sees his customer although each farmer feeds his own family and 35 others, 5 of the 35 not even living in the United States. Farmers no longer control the Congress and that Labor is apparently in control at the present time, with government wanting to dominate and manage agriculture."

"Controlled spending is essential at the present time, especially in government," he asserted. "Only as the farmers are prosperous and remain in business will the business houses also remain in business as farmers and business men

Mike Abernathy Reporting

You Can't Beat Old Illinois

"Hello from the land of cotton, rice, cattle, tomatoes, peaches, oranges, pears and a hundred other crops," writes Mike Abernathy to Plowland & Meadow.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Wilbur Abernathy of Concord, he worked part-time for this department in the summer of 1963, after he graduated from the agricultural communications department of the U.I. College of Agriculture.

Every time it was too wet to bale hay or straw that summer he came to the Journal Courier to find out how he could help.

Early in 1964 he went to Sacramento, Calif., to become the assistant farm editor of KFBK, a radio station that pioneered farm reporting in California. Ray Rodgers has been director of the station's Farm Service programs since 1943.

In his letter Abernathy says he likes the work very much, "although it seems to often require about 25 hours per day."

The radio station presents four 15-minute programs daily, and in addition helps present a half-hour show daily from KOVR-TV, and also helps with a 30 minute program on the Valley Radio Network every Saturday. The network consists of stations in Sacramento, Fresno, Modesto, Calif., and Reno, Nev.

He is also the publicity director of California Young Republicans and is active in the Reagan-for-Governor campaign.

He writes: "Of course, the farm labor situation keeps me hotly involved every day here. Farmers are still very bitter over Gov. Brown's and Orville Freeman's joint catering to labor union interests, and Brown's refusal to even acknowledge that dollars were rotting in the fields, until it was too late.

MIKE ABERNATHY, a native of the Brown's Crossing neighborhood northwest of Jacksonville, is the assistant farm director of Radio KFBK, Sacramento, Calif., and is shown here interviewing Warren Wegis, chairman of the California State Chamber of Commerce Agriculture committee, on plans for the state Farm-City Day activities to be held in Sacramento Nov. 16.

Something like one-third of the total tomato crop rotted, because labor unions forced an end to the "bracero" or Mexican worker program and the state replaced the Mexicans with a motley assortment of welfare recipients and "skid row bums," the kind who never held a job, and never cared to.

Farmers charge that they were guinea pigs for a sociological experiment, and truthfully that's exactly what happened.

The labor shortage, Abernathy relates, caused some Central Valley farmers to turn their attention to corn, and they are registering fantastic yields. Using irrigation some are getting 200 bushels per acre. The big seed companies, such as Pioneer, DeKalb, Funk and Pfister, feel California can become the nation's biggest corn state.

The general unhappiness on the part of farmers, because of the labor problem and because of many other things they feel Pat Brown has done wrong during the past eight years brought Secretary Freeman out to the Valley to campaign for Brown Oct. 17-18. The crowds the Secretary attracted were very thin, even thinner than the ones he has been drawing in the Corn-belt states this fall.

Abernathy knows Reagan will capture the rural vote, but feels the former Eureka College half-back, amateur boxer and professional actor will have plenty of trouble in the big cities, and particularly from organized labor, the social workers and organized relief.

He observes:

Farmers themselves provide the best answer as to how the rural vote will actually go next month, for Brown or Reagan, in the governor's race.

Efforts to organize a Farmers-for-Brown group haven't gotten off the ground, while Farmers-for-Reagan committees are virtually blazing across every county in the state. This makes my work difficult. Unable to find any farmer to speak for Brown I have to go to Brown's Director of Agriculture, and even to Orville Freeman himself.

This week Abernathy will spend most of his time at the Grand National Livestock Exposition in San Francisco's Cow Palace.

He concluded his letter: "I've got to get on the road now. There's a statewide beef show at the fairgrounds here. They don't show beef cattle anymore during the state fair, claiming they don't have enough room. In my opinion this detracts seriously from the state fair, but then I tend to compare everything with Illinois, which is still "God's Country" to me. Those People Back Home still stand head and shoulders above any I've ever met."

Trulls To Visit Hawaii, Attend Conference

Farm Adviser and Mrs. George Trull will leave St. Louis Tuesday for Honolulu to attend the annual meeting of the National Association of County Agricultural Agents.

They will return Nov. 15.

This is the first meeting of the association outside the continent. The sessions will last seven days, and the more than 1,000 who will attend the conference will be entertained two or three evenings by the 4-H Club Federation of Hawaii.

For the next three days the delegates will tour the other islands to inspect sugar and pineapple plantations, cattle ranches and other phases of agriculture typical to the islands.

BRIMFUL and running over

By Jim Brim

Frequently we hear a lot about molasses as feed for cattle.

Here are some thoughts about molasses.

It tastes good and cattle will eat the ration better.

It is high in sugar and contains large amounts of energy which are almost immediately available to the animal.

Molasses can have a "tonic" action which will make the hair on the animal shiny.

Molasses has a binding property which will hold a ration together and prevent blowing of finely ground feed.

If cheap enough it may be a more economical source of energy than grain.

Tests show molasses contains about 70% as much total digestible nutrients as No. 2 yellow corn. They also show molasses did not contain any nutritional factors which were not already supplied by the other ingredients in the ration.

Molasses is best to: Increase consumption of unpalatable roughage.

Possibly to improve appetite and hair condition of long fed cattle.

Prevent dustiness in feed.

Molasses does not seem to increase gain, increase water consumption or increase selling price of cattle fed under ordinary feeding programs.

Consider the proposed Revenue Article carefully. There are many possibilities to consider and it merits much thought and discussion.

In spite of changing times cooperatives seem to grow larger, doing more business in more areas each year. They must fill a need to receive this great acceptance.

The huge national debt they will inherit should keep our children from one indulgence—ancestor worship.

SAVING MONEY IN SPACE

By WALTER B. HENDRICKSON JR.

In spite of all the billions being spent on space exploration space-age planners must be careful of their money, time and manpower, otherwise they might spend too much and still not come up with the best method of solving a problem.

This is especially true of a system such as the Communications Satellites where a number of choices are available. These alternatives were discussed by David D. Werts of TRW systems in a paper presented to a recent meeting of engineers in Washington D. C.

Six At One Shot
Looking at how much it could cost to provide a relay system Werts considered a range of combinations of satellites and boosters. For example, one point to give attention to is how many spacecraft are to be launched by a single booster. The Air Force recently put up six communications satellites with a single Titan III-C rocket.

In medium orbital altitudes more satellites are needed, possibly as many as 24, to give complete global coverage. This is because the satellites move rapidly across the sky and disappear, like the Echo balloons. Enough satellites must be provided so that a new one will be rising when the other is setting.

Never Setting
This rising and setting can be avoided by replacing a satellite in orbit 22,300 miles above the equator. At this altitude, called a synchronous orbit, the satellite's speed matches the speed of earth. This makes the satellite appear to hang motionless in the sky.

This synchronous system is preferred by the civilian Communications Satellite (Comsat) Corporation because the antennas do not have to be moved to follow the satellite. Also only three satellites in synchronous orbit are needed to provide coverage for the entire earth, as shown in the picture above.

Military Preference
The Military, however, prefers orbits lower than the synchronous altitude. If the satellites keep moving they are more difficult for an enemy to detect and destroy. Worse yet the enemy could easily find the fre-

Myrtle Warbler

By Emma Mae Leonhard

Warblers have gone, and Juncos have arrived; for these are the days of autumn chills and frost-bitten roses. But just as hardy and defiant as our flaming chrysanthemums are the whitening frosts is our Myrtle Warbler, called by Audubon the Yellow-rumped Warbler.

This warbler can well be considered one of our favorite bird visitors; it arrives early and stays late—but never wears its welcome out. It comes early in the spring, usually appearing in the first week in April. As late as November we may hear its loud metallic "chip" and see it flash its sun-yellow rump as it flits among the bare twigs of late fall.

We like the Myrtle Warbler for several reasons. It is one of the easiest warblers to recognize. Whether we observe it in its handsome blue-gray, black, white, and yellow spring or breeding plumage—or the rather drab and dull winter plumage—the shining rump patch is ever present and easy to see.

The winter sun seems to be concentrating its warm yellow rays upon that patch, announcing to us, "I am always with you." Also we have no difficulty in knowing that this little neat and active bird is in our presence; its distinctive call is never lost to us nor confused with the rustle of the falling autumn leaves.

No Handouts Needed
Furthermore, we admire its ability to solve its food problems without poverty hand-outs.

When insects are here, it dines upon them; we enjoy watching its butterfly-like ways, hovering about crannies of trees or buildings and its fly-catcher methods of snatching insects on the fly. When insects have hidden from the cold winds, it lives off seeds and berries. It particularly enjoys Bayberry and Poison Ivy berries.

And last but still very important, we like the Myrtle Warbler because there are so many of its clan that call upon us without being nuisances. It inhabits a wide range and shows itself to observers from one end of the country to the other, even at our bird bath or window sills.

In migration Myrtles occur everywhere and are especially numerous in weedy tangles, brushy areas, and hedgerows. Above all else, they are tame and friendly to both birds and us. The Chickadee likes the Myrtle Warbler, and so do we.

WATERMELON TIME

By John Rankin

If you take a watermelon but put it back, is that stealing? Mike and Danny don't think so, and they devise a plan—a very careful plan since Mr. Ginder is known to be very short tempered, especially about his melon patch.

The boys hung around in the gathering shadows of early evening then and talked some more. Finally, with all details of their plan settled, they got up and started home.

Midnight Meeting
At a little past midnight Mike and Danny were back on the scene again. They came prepared for the business at hand and lost little time in getting on with it. A full moon shone brilliantly and a tree growing conveniently near the fence extended a limb above and out over the watermelon patch like a great hand pointing the way.

From the railroad track Mike pointed to the tall, sprawling tree silhouetted in the moonlight and said, "This is a cinch. All we have to do is climb up there and skin out that limb till we clear the fence and we'll be right over the patch."

"Yeah, nothing to it," Danny readily agreed, and they started on and scooted down the steep embankment on their back to the more level ground below. Then careful not to touch the electrically-charged fence they pushed on with measured steps along a treacherous ditch and through a mass of thistles to finally reach the tree.

Beaming with confidence now, the determined youths lost little time in getting up the tree and scooted hurriedly across the limb to a point directly above the watermelon patch. Then securing a rope brought along for that purpose to the limb they lowered themselves to the ground.

Grimacing broadly the boys felt like yelling with delight at their success thus far. But the greater task lay ahead, however.

ever. To get themselves on the inside was one thing. But to remove a sizeable watermelon from the patch and then bring it back again with out dropping and breaking it was something else again.

But the spirit of youth is not easily discouraged, and the clever youngsters simply fashioned a second rope at hand in a net of sorts and anchored a good-sized watermelon up snugly to the over-hanging limb. Then they skinned up the other rope and began the tedious and nerve-racking task of getting it across to the body of the tree.

No Easy Task
It was not easy to maneuver such a bulky, unwieldy thing along a swaying limb without dropping it, the boys soon discovered, and found the undertaking extremely trying to say the least. But they managed it somehow, and finally eased the watermelon to the ground on the outside of the patch.

They climbed down then and sat around and talked awhile, and laughed and joked a lot about "putting over a fast one" on old Mr. Ginder. But eventually the fun wore off and they grew serious and decided it was time to get the watermelon back to the patch.

Surprise
It took some doings but they got it there at last—carefully placed it in its proper position among the other melons and drew back triumphantly to view their handiwork. But at that very moment a slight movement in back of them—or perhaps it was instinct that warned the youngsters—and they spun around startled just as old Mr. Ginder himself raised up from behind a small sandhill!

Treasures

The "Pictures" in my Bible, I see them every day
The faces of my Loved Ones Who, long, have been away.
They seem, almost to speak to me.

When I read Thy Precious Book:

I'm so sure, between the pages Of Your Bibles, friends you see
Your own, so dear and life-like, Smiling up the same as me;
My Bible's almost bursting With these TREASURES, that I prize.

Carbon Monoxide Hides Its Deadliest Qualities

A total of 167 accidental deaths due to carbon monoxide were reported in the state during 1965, Dr. Franklin D. Yoder, director, Illinois Department of Public Health, reports.

"Almost daily now, carbon monoxide, the sneak killer, claims victims from the unaware," Dr. Yoder pointed out. The danger of this poisonous gas is greatly increased because, unlike many other pollutants, it has no taste, no odor, does not irritate the eyes or nose and has no color. Its presence cannot be detected by any of the senses. Exposure to sufficient amounts of carbon monoxide may cause a slight headache or a vague feeling of illness. But the normal sense of danger seems to be dulled by carbon monoxide and unconsciousness and death may soon follow.

While such deaths are reported throughout the year, more occur during the winter months. Closed windows, lack of proper ventilation and a faulty heating system can be a lethal combination in the home.

Of the 167 accidental deaths, 101 occurred in the home. No records are available concerning the number of persons non-fatally poisoned by carbon monoxide.

Deaths were caused by several sources of carbon monoxide gas. The burning of any fuel that contains carbon may produce the gas. The fuel may be oil or gasoline, cooking gas, coal, coke, kerosene or even wood, for example. Any fuel-burning heating appliance may be a source of carbon monoxide gas unless the appliance is adjusted, operating and vented properly.

Homeowners should secure an annual maintenance checkup of furnaces and similar equipment to insure reliable and economical operation of the equipment during the heating season. Such checkups should include repairs or replacement of flues, smoke pipes or other facilities that control products of combustion. Special caution is necessary in homes with attached or basement garages. Automobiles, or any other gasoline-powered motor, should never be run in a closed space, since carbon monoxide is one of the chief components of exhaust gases.

Charcoal should not be burned in confined areas or in defective fireplaces.

If a gas odor is detectable in your home, notify the utility company at once and ventilate the house. Tracing gas leaks is not a job for the home-owner, Dr. Yoder said. Utility gas was involved in 13 of the accidental deaths in homes in 1965.

Motor vehicle exhaust gas was involved in 117 accidental deaths during 1965. Of these, 57 occurred at home; four while parked on a roadway, five in other specified places such as parking lots, four in unspecified places, and four while traveling on a highway. While only four were reported in the latter category, Dr. Yoder said it could only be estimated how many other highway deaths were due to carbon monoxide.

Exhaust pipes of automobiles should be checked periodically and replaced if not intact. If backed into a snowbank, the tail pipe may become plugged up. Check it. Never drive long distances in a tightly closed car, or park with the engine running to keep the heater operating. These are precautions that may avert tragedy, Dr. Yoder emphasized.

An understanding of the action of carbon monoxide may save a life. This gas combines with the blood and prevents the blood from performing its function of supplying oxygen to the tissues. However, if the victim is removed to fresh air in time, and breathing can be restored, the blood will gradually rid itself of the carbon monoxide and the patient is likely to recover.

Artificial respiration should be undertaken at once if the victim is not breathing. A folder on the technique of mouth-to-mouth resuscitation is available from the department, Dr. Yoder said.

"During 1965, 140 persons deliberately took their lives by means of carbon monoxide gas, but considering the 167 who did not expect to die from this cause, a great lack of awareness of the hazards of this futuristic killer is indicated," he said.

While only four were reported in the latter category, Dr. Yoder said it could only be estimated how many other highway deaths were due to carbon monoxide.

Exhaust pipes of automobiles should be checked periodically and replaced if not intact. If backed into a snowbank, the tail pipe may become plugged up. Check it. Never drive long distances in a tightly closed car, or park with the engine running to keep the heater operating. These are precautions that may avert tragedy, Dr. Yoder emphasized.

An understanding of the action of carbon monoxide may save a life. This gas combines with the blood and prevents the blood from performing its function of supplying oxygen to the tissues. However, if the victim is removed to fresh air in time, and breathing can be restored, the blood will gradually rid itself of the carbon monoxide and the patient is likely to recover.

Artificial respiration should be undertaken at once if the victim is not breathing. A folder on the technique of mouth-to-mouth resuscitation is available from the department, Dr. Yoder said.

"During 1965, 140 persons deliberately took their lives by means of carbon monoxide gas, but considering the 167 who did

The Gold Mines Of Jacksonville

Oregon

Last August Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Brown, 1212 W. State st., visited their daughter, Virginia, and her husband, Paul E. Yeaton, in Portland, Ore.

The Yeatons have left Portland to reside in Corvallis, and she is taking considerable interest in the history of Jacksonville, Ore., a town that went through a gold craze and a timber rush, then died, and is now being reborn.

Mrs. Brown kindly left at the Journal Courier a photo-lithographed copy of the Table Rock Sentinel issued Saturday, May 24, 1886.

At that time there were at least 10,000 people in the Jacksonville mining district, about half of them Chinese. The latter were content to work the claims abandoned as too poor by the Americans and sometimes they came upon rich bonanzas. There is a legend that one Chinaman found a pocket of placer gold that yielded $2,000,000 in nuggets and dust.

Jackmanville virtually died after the mines played out and the timber was cut off. In 1936 there were fewer than 400 people in the town. Although the weather is wonderful and the scenery fabulous nobody can live on fresh air and vistas.

Revival, Restoration

Now it is coming back with a bang. The 1960 census found 1,344 people there and that figure is today set at 3,000. Some of the old buildings are being restored. The second-growth stands of fir and spruce and pine are now ready for the mill.

Mrs. Yeaton is working on some history notes of Jacksonville, Ore., and promises to send them to the Journal Courier some day soon.

The editor of the Sentinel was quite a character, sore at somebody all of the time and sore at everybody some of the time. He was William G. T'Vault, colonel of the 2nd Oregon Territorial Guard. Of Southern ancestry he somehow drifted into the vast Oregon territory and set up a law office in Oregon City.

He was the editor of the first newspaper printed west of the Rocky Mountains, the Oregon Spectator which began Feb. 5, 1846. But he was away too aggressive, too fiery for the other members of the association sponsoring the paper, so he moved south and started the Umpqua Gazette as an outlet for his acid pen. When gold was found in Jackson creek, Jackson county in 1852 he moved his press to the new diggings and named it the Table Rock Sentinel in honor, you might say, of the unusual rock formation that centers nearby Table Rock State Park.

"The Oregon Style"

T'Vault, when he went after somebody, used every vile and mean term he could find or invent to describe the man. Other western editors adopted what became known among newspapermen as "The Oregon Style," and before long it worked itself eastward and became very popular in the Midwest and South.

Once a San Francisco editor charged T'Vault with being an abolitionist and the latter replied "If I thought I had one drop of abolition blood in me I'd cut it out." During the Civil war he was so critical of President Lincoln and the Union war effort that the army suspended the Sentinel for more than a year.

He was pretty quiet in this particular issue. He was sore at Congress for being so excited about the contested election in Kansas that they weren't paying any attention to the claims of his clients for damages incurred in the Indian "wars" of 1853 and 1855.

At that time the senators and representatives were thinking of raising their wages from $8 to $12 per diem, and he declared that "most of the worthless scamps aren't worth $8 a year."

And now, 110 years later, quite a few people agree with him.

T'Vault believed that the only good Indian was a dead one. He wrote a short item that Capt. Rice had been shot at by an Indian the previous Monday, commenting in closing "Those red devils are still on the alert to commit murders."

New Discoveries

The only other local news he had that week concerned the mines.

MINING NEWS — Within the last ten days, the miners on the left hand fork of Jackson creek have been making new and rich discoveries. The deposits yield from one to two hundred dollars per day to the hand. We have heard men say that in some places a thousand dollars to the hand could be taken out. The new discoveries are on the flat, on the left hand fork, and easily worked. At present the water is not very plenty.

STERLING MINES — The prospectors at Sterling have made some good strikes in the flat where the town stands, and miners are sinking shafts and literally undermining the town. It is only from 15 to 20 feet to the bed-rock and pays well. The new discovery will add much to the prosperity of the miners, as well as the whole country.

A legal notice described the new reservation "for the exclusive use of the confederate tribes and bands of Indians forever" in what is now that most rich and fertile Yakima valley of the present State of Washington. The treaty also stipulated six square miles on the Pisuqu river for fishing purposes for the same period of time.

I'll bet this treaty was broken before the Indian's X was dry.

In the advertising section of the paper, Col. W. G. T'Vault advised that everyone who engaged in the late Indian war, who served 14 days or more, was entitled to 160 acres of land. The same was available for any widow or orphan. The Colonel said he could handle all applications for bounty land and back pay, as he had "a competent agent at Washington City."

"Treasure Insured"

Wells Fargo & Co. advertised that they could transport gold dust out of Jacksonville safely and speedily, as it had a stage to New York City once a month and stages to Portland and San Francisco twice a month. The advertisement announced "Treasure insured in the best New York Companies or at Lloyds of London, at the option of shippers."

Those were balmy days for Wells Fargo, with plenty of business and no highwaymen. These black-hood villains didn't bother the stages until after the Civil War.

As may be supposed, Jackson county had a full slate of candidates for the various offices in the district — all Democrats. But there was a candidate on his own, as the following notice indicates:

FOREIGN

October, 1866

It is ascertained by the cholera returns in London, that the cases were always heavier on Mondays and Tuesdays than on any other day, owing to greater drunkenness which prevails on Saturday night, often extending over Sunday morning.

The Governor of Seville, Spain, has issued a decree imposing heavy fines on all persons who say anything irreverent of the Virgin Mary, or sacred things, or the Roman Catholic dogmas. He would have a good time if he attempted the same experiment in New York City, where reverence, and not irreverence, is the exception.

—Harper's Weekly

EDITORS SENTINEL — You will please announce my name as a candidate for the office of Sheriff of Jackson County, at the ensuing June election.

For the information of those who are not acquainted with me, I will say that I am a Whig. E. B. Ball.

But it didn't take long to count his votes.

Selection of the permanent capital was the subject of three letters to the editors. The towns in top contention were Eugene City, Corvallis and Salem. All three writers favored Corvallis, one of them stating, "Aside from all prejudice or sectional partiality, Corvallis is the most proper place. It is at the head of navigation, easy of access from the south, and is not a HOLE IN THE MUD such as Salem, shut out from the rest of the world."

I'll bet the Col. T'Vault screamed when Salem was picked.

All the business houses in Jacksonville advertised "Gold Dust and Country Produce Taken in at Top Prices."

And the final ad, a two-liner on the bottom of the last column of the back page, was used for years by nearly all western papers:

Wanted at this office —

CASH.

Why Do Taxes Always Go Up?

No doubt William Clark thought taxes were getting away out of line when he went to Winchester to pay his taxes in the spring of 1844.

He had to fork over to F. G. Murray, the tax collector, the sum of $5.26. He owned 143 acres of land in Section 31, Township 15, Range 12, located on the north side of Plum Creek, about a mile and a half southeast of Exeter. Half of this land was valued at $5 per acre and the other half was valued at $4. His personal property was assessed at $233, making a total value of $877.

The old receipt was brought to the Journal Courier office last week by Mrs. Lucy Witwer, 108 Fairview. She said she found it among some old papers and that she didn't have any idea how it came in her possession.

HUMORS of the day

October, 1866

Why is a flirt like an empty India-rubber ball?

Because she is very empty and has a good deal of bounce. Squabbles, an old bachelor, showed his stockings, which he had just darned, to a maiden lady, who contemptuously remarked, "Pretty good for a man darning." Whereupon Squabbles rejoins, "Good enough for a woman, darn her." Somebody has been making curious calculations about the wheat crop in Illinois, in 1865, and finds that if made into Johnny Cake it would feed the population of the world two days.

—Harper's Weekly

DOMESTIC

October, 1866

General Pope proposes to gather all the Indians roaming in Rocky Mountains and in the Great Plains into a reservation in the Mississippi Valley, and teach them agricultural pursuits. There will probably be a "good time" if any attempt is made to carry out this, as if there is anything that the Indian is not, that something is agricultural.

President Johnson has caused a silver medal to be prepared, together with one hundred silver dollars and a certificate of merit, for presentation to Hooke-op, a chief of the Blackfeet tribe of Indians, as a reward for rescuing a white woman from captivity. This medal weighs about half a pound.

The Portland (Maine) Transcript tell a story illustrating the thieving carried on at the great fire. It says that a man and his wife, who were burnt out and went over to the Cape to board, on being shown to their room, found it furnished with their own furniture.

A marble statue of Washington Irving is to be erected in the vestibule of the church — erected as a memorial to him — in Sleepy Hollow, N.Y.

Two strangers hung up their coats in a Baltimore barber shop, the other day. The first, on leaving, took the wrong coat, which contained $2,500. He did not discover his mistake till accosted by a police officer.

He was alarmed, as his own coat contained $6,000. An exchange, drinks, & c. followed.

A girl in the employ of the Wolcottville, Conn., Manufacturing Co., possesses most wonderful arithmetical powers. She counts 2,000 percussion caps and puts them in twenty boxes (100 in each) in one minute, and never makes a mistake.

Speaker Here Nov. 4

Robert Prager

The Morgan County Audubon Society will meet at 7:30, Friday evening, November 4, in the lecture room of Crispin Hall, Illinois College. Mr. Robert Prager, formerly manager of Abraham Lincoln Memorial Garden, Springfield, will present an illustrated talk on "Birds—Their Origin, Development, and Way of Life"; he will be assisted by his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Prager (Bob and Sybil to many; Uncle Bob and Billie to hundreds of school children) are now in Peoria at the Forest Park Nature Center, a 500-acre tract of wooded river bluffs with some small meadows.

The Pragers' work is much like that at the Abraham Lincoln Memorial Garden, where he and Mrs. Prager spent three years, building up a great interest in nature in both adults and children by their conducted nature tours. Both the local Garden Club and the Audubon Society have taken advantage of their wide and thorough knowledge in the various phases of nature. Mr. Prager was president of the Springfield Audubon Society at the time of his move to Peoria. The Pragers have issued all of us a warm invitation to visit them at the Forest Park Nature Center in Peoria.

The Friday night meeting is open to the public. Everyone is welcome.

Mrs. Donald Frey

The guest speaker for the World Community Day program at the First Presbyterian Church, Friday, November 4, at 1:30 p.m. will be Mrs. Donald Frey of Evanston, Ill.

Observed nationally under the sponsorship of the United Church Women, World Community Day seeks to promote international understanding through study, prayer and material aid projects. The author of the 1966 WCD Service of Worship is Sister Mary Luke, the Superior General of the Sisters of Loretto at the Foot of the Cross, in Nerinx, Kentucky. The theme is "Laity: Rights, Resources, Responsibilities."

Mrs. Howard Mitchell, chairman of the Christian World Relations Committee of the United Church Women of Jacksonville, and committee members Mrs. Edgar Franz, Mrs. Gerald Peterson and Mrs. Friedrich Engelbach, have made arrangements for the Friday program. The Women's Association of First Presbyterian Church will serve refreshments in the church library following the service. A nursery will be provided.

Well Known Here

Mrs. Frey is well known in Jacksonville, where both she and her husband, Donald Frey, have spoken. Mr. Frey is an attorney in Evanston, and chairman of the Citizens Committee for Freedom of Residence in the State of Illinois.

Mrs. Frey is an active member of United Church Women on national and state levels as well as in her local community, where she has been president of the Evanston UCW. She was Illinois representative to the UCW Church World Order Conference in St. Louis in 1965. She is a member of the boards of the Evanston Council of Churches, the Peace and World Affairs Center of Evanston, the Evanston YWCA, and the Evanston Child Care Center, and is a speaker for the United Nations Association.

Displays of UNICEF Christmas cards and calendars have been arranged by Mrs. Engelbach. Mrs. Franz will show small, handmade gifts secured from the International Gift Shops of Church World Service, to be sold for the benefit of the people who make them.

This sale benefits the American Association of University Women's Fellowship Fund. Since 1888 this fund has grown until in 1965-66 it made it possible for 59 women, from all over the world, to do graduate study in the varied fields of their choice. Subjects ranged from Cardiovascular Research to Teaching, Human Rights in International Relations, Economic Theory, Public Health, and Law. For the current year, 1966-67, $165,000. was available for American women alone. When you hold eight trumps in your hand and dummy you are entitled to assume that the enemy's five trumps will divide 3-2. They will do that about 68 per cent of the time.

If they split 4-1 as they do 28 per cent of the time or 5-0 as happens occasionally, and the adverse split leads to defeat of your contract, you may be entitled to complain a trifle about bad luck.

South won the club lead with dummy's ace and played a small spade. East stuck in the nine and was allowed to hold the trick. Then he played his singleton trump. South won, cashed his ace of spades, ruffed his last spade in dummy, ruffed a club and played a high trump. East showed out.

South played out the hand slowly but had no way to avoid the loss of three more tricks. He complained about his bad luck but he had no real right to complain.

South should have studied the hand carefully before playing to the second trick. He could count ten tricks if trumps broke but he could also take some precautions in case they happened to break 4-1.

His correct play would be to ruff a club at trick two and lead a spade. East would win and lead a trump. South would win, take the ace of spades, ruff a spade, ruff another club in his own hand and then go after trumps. They still wouldn't break but it wouldn't hurt South. He would make his last trump by ruffing dummy's last club. Of course this play wouldn't have worked if West held only three clubs but it represented an extra chance that was well-worth taking.

VOTES AGAINST PROGRESS

Findley's Press Agency Obscures Dismal Record

U. S. REP. PAUL FINDLEY was photographed recently visiting Lincoln School in Springfield to view the Title I program of federal aid to education in operation.

There is nothing wrong—nothing unusual—about a congressman visiting a school in his district. But it is interesting when a congressman gets himself photographed viewing the operation of a federal program he voted against.

Congressman Findley is an expert at politicking. He votes against measure after measure in Congress, then when it turns out those measures are for the public good and are popular with the people, he maneuvers to make it appear he favored them all along.

The Title I program, which Findley voted against is designed to provide supplementary educational opportunities for children from low income families.

It has been recognized for some time by social scientists that better, stronger, more complete educational programs are needed for low income areas than for other sectors of the community. This is because children of those areas have fewer opportunities to learn outside the schools, and they receive less learning stimulus from their parents and their environment.

However, practice in the past in most communities has been to give poor areas no better schools—and frequently poorer schools—than other areas receive.

But now, under Title I of the federal aid program, students in low income areas are receiving training in everything from music to botany, from literature to astronomy, in supplemental after-school classes.

We trust that Congressman Findley, now that he has seen what these federal aid programs do and how well they're working, will support them in the future, if he succeeds in fooling enough voters to be returned to Congress.

We believe the congressman has to fool the voters to be re-elected because his voting record is truly dismal. Opposition to federal aid to education is only one small part of that record.

He voted against medicare.
He voted against income tax reduction.
He voted against the War on Poverty.
He voted against nuclear arms control measures.

He has voted against virtually every progressive program enacted during the Kennedy and Johnson administrations.

Yet when those programs turn out to work for the benefit of the people, the congressman shuts up about his opposition to them and acts as if he was a booster from the start.

One of these years—perhaps this year—the people of the 20th District will get wise to Congressman Findley's tactics and vote him out of office.

The Democratic Party has a bright, well qualified, young candidate this year in Richard Wolfe of Springfield. His constructive outlook is in sharp contrast to the negativism of Findley.

The district could do itself, and the nation, a great deal of good by sending Wolfe to represent it in Congress.

Crimsons Rip Lanphier 34-7, Routt Romps 33-7

Ground Offensive Controls Contest

By BUFORD GREEN
Sports Editor

Jacksonville's explosive ground offensive, with three different backs grinding out 100 yards or more, turned what was expected to be a tight game into a second-half runaway as the Crimsons pelted Springfield Lanphier, 34-7, in the Jacks' final home game of the season Friday night.

Abe Brown, Rich Coble and Jim Bruner all ran wild for the Crimsons, who ran their season's record to 6-1 and their final Capitol Conference mark to 3-1.

JHS earned second spot in the conference with the win, finishing a half game behind Springfield. Griffin, who fought to a 7-7 tie with Decatur Mac-nings plays, with Gollier and Arthur Friday night. Griffin Brooks stopping the fourth and finished with a 3-0-1 mark.

Brown, one of the shiftest and speediest fullbacks in Central Illinois, carried the ball 16 times for 156 yards and scored three times, once on a 65-yard breakaway. Senior halfback Coble piled up 100 yards in 11 carries and Bruner piled up another 100 in 13 tries, with each scoring once.

As a team Jacksonville piled up a season-high of 379 yards on the ground and added 75 more passing, on the arms of Danny Brooks and Brown. Lanphier managed 121 rushing yards, far below their usual average, but the Crimson defense came up with the big play several times to prevent scores by the Lions.

Do Little Wrong After fumbling on their second play from scrimmage, the Crimsons did little else wrong all evening. On their second series the winners moved 68 yards in only seven plays to get on the scoreboard.

Bruner, subbing for regular fullback Harry Gollier, who played only defense in the game, ripped off 18 yards and Coble added 12 down to the 19. On the next play Bruner carried three tacklers from the five on in and got the hosts a quick lead. Coble ran the point after although the snap was bobbled for a 7-0 count with 4:39 left in the quarter.

JHS came right back to march from their own 25 to the Lanphier 29 before bogging down. Again holding Lanphier without a first down, the Crimsons struck 60 yards in only four plays on the next series.

Bruner carried twice for eight yards and Brown surprised the Lanphier defense with a half-back option pass to end Tor Duerwer for 52 yards to the Lanphier one. Brown lunged over on the next play and Hill booted the PAT for a 14-0 difference with 6:41 left in the half.

Thwarted Lion Threats Two Lanphier threats in the remaining time were thwarted, once when Gerald Stewart picked up a Lanphier fumble at the Crimsons' 35, and again when the JHS secondary knocked down two Lion passes.

Jacksonville took the second half kickoff and marched 70 yards in only five plays. Coble broke loose for 40 yards on the first play from scrimmage in the half, then Brown added ten and Bruner 15 to the nine, from where Brown sliced off left tackle and went in untouched. Hill again connected for a 21-0 margin with 10:16 to play in the third.

Lanphier came back to march from their own 32 to the Jacksonville four, with reserve quarterback George Madden sparking the march. JHS dug in at field Griffin, who fought to a 7-7 tie with Decatur Mac-nings plays, with Gollier and Arthur Friday night. Griffin Brooks stopping the fourth and finished with a 3-0-1 mark.

Lanphier Gets On Board Near the end of the frame Lanphier started their only scoring drive of the evening, moving from their own 42 to a 65-yard scoring play. Again Madden and regular quarterback Mike Provines held out passing hands, with Provines hitting fullback Frank Werka for a 10-yard screen pass for the score. Bob Ingersoll booted the point after for a 21-7 edge with 9:07 to play in the contest.

Coble ripped off a 67-yard TD scamper on the next series only to have it called back on a clipping infraction. On the next play Brown matched him with a 65-yard scoring burst. Hill booted the PAT again for a 28-7 bulge with 7:30 showing.

A Lanphier fumble that Hill picked up then dropped and Wayne Fanning finally fell on at the Lions' seven set up the final score of the night. Coble made it over the middle the final three yards for the 34-7 final with 3:50 still left.

Line stalwarts for the Crimsons included Stewart, John Parrott, Wayne Cook, John Long and others.

Lanphier now holds a 4-21 overall mark and slipped to 1-2 in the Capitol Conference.

Meier Scores 38 Points In 53-0 Romp By Triopia

MEREDOSIA — Bill Meier scored six touchdowns and two extra points in pacing undefeated Triopia to a 53-0 PMSC Conference slaughter over Meredosia, here Friday afternoon.

Meier, a senior halfback, led the Trojans in their point parade that scored four times in the second quarter for a 34-0 halftime bulge. Quarterback Tom Burrus hit Meier with three scoring strikes.

Larry Crews got the winners on the board first with a three-yard lunge in the opening quarter, with Meier adding the point after.

Meier picked up all four touchdowns in the second period, on a 2-yard carry, a 46-yard pass from Burrus, a two-yard run and a 60-yard pass from Burrus. Meier, Crews and Rodney Nobis ran PTAs in the frame.

Burrus connected with Meier again on a 13-yard six-pointer in the third quarter, and Nobis raced 55 yards up the middle for another. Meier returned a punt 41 yards for a TD in the closing quarter.

Triopia, which lost three fumbles in the opening half, racked up nine first downs to only one for the losers, who never threatened to score.

Triopia kept the PMSC lead with a 4-0 mark, a half-game better than Routt, which moved to 4-1 with a 33-7 win over Bluffs, and moved to 6-0-1 on the season. Meredosia is now 2-4 and 1-3.

WILSON JC 36, JOLIET JC 0 CHICAGO (AP)—Wilson Junior College blanked Joliet Junior College 36-0 Friday and clinched at least a tie for the Northern Illinois Conference football title. Wilson now has a 7-0 record with one more conference game to play.

ALL ALONE: JHS fullback Jim Bruner is caught by the camera all alone on this end run Friday night. Bruner, a junior, gained 100 yards rushing for the Crimsons in their 34-7 romp over Lanphier Friday night.

Tigers Score Late To Gain 6-6 IVC Tie

GREENFIELD — Greenfield scored with less than a minute left in the game to earn a 6-6 Illinois Valley tie with Southwestern, here Friday night.

Southwestern took a 6-0 lead in the opening frame when Charley Cairns plunged over from one yard away. The PAT was nullified by a penalty, then a kick failed. Dick Lister set up the score with an interception returned 25 yards to the Greenfield one.

Greenfield got a scoring drive underway late in the final frame, marching from its own 43 to the one from where George Knisley plunged across. Mike Knisley set up the score by forcing a fumble which Larry Ford recovered. The running try for the point after failed.

Southwestern got inside the Greenfield ten on four occasions but stalled three times, twice on bad snaps.

Greenfield picked up 14 first downs to only four by Southwestern, and outgained the Birds on the ground, 121-112. The Tigers gained 53 yards in the air to Southwestern's 27.

Greenfield now stands 4-1-1 overall and 2-1-1 in the IVC, while Southwestern holds a 2-4-1 season rating and an identical league mark, as the two clubs remained tied for second in the IVC.

"GEE MOM, WHAT HAPPENED?"

PITTSBURGH, Pa. (AP) — A 5-year-old boy strayed from his mother's side while she was doing business Friday in a bank and pushed a button near the vault.

Within minutes, police swarmed into the bank. The button? It was the burglar alarm.

Strong Passing Combo Lifts NW To 27-12 Victory

PALMYRA — Larry Anderson to Barry Harvey pass patterns netted a pair of touchdowns and an extra point here Friday night, as Northwestern's host Wildcats rolled to a 27-12 MSM conference win over Virden.

The junior quarterback hit his senior backfield mate for scores of 35 and 65 yards in the first half, while two late fourth quarter markers iced it for the Wildcats.

The loss was Virden's first in conference competition in four outings.

After the first Anderson to Harvey TD strike had put the locals on top by 7-0, Steve Krempasky went on an 11 yard scoring romp to bring Virden within one, 7-6.

Anderson then hit Harvey for the 65-yard effort, leaving Northwestern up by 13-6 at the half.

A sustained drive, capped by Bruce Hart's one yard plunge, brought Virden to a 13-6 deficit early in the final quarter before two late Wildcat tallies ended the threat.

Right tackle Donny Crawford picked off a Virden pass and romped 55 yards for the first marker, while Mark Harbaugh found daylight around right end for 55 yards, and Northwestern's fourth and final tally.

Passes from Anderson to Jim Woods, and Anderson to Harvey netted the extra points.

The win leaves Northwestern with a 3-2 conference slate, and a 4-3 season mark.

Rockets Get Near 400 Yards For 4th

By TOM GIFFEN

The Routt Rockets, after a sluggish first half, unleashed an attack of almost 400 yards total offense while holding Bluffs to 13 yards in all and smothered the Bluejays 33-7 in a PMSC contest on the Illinois College field Friday afternoon.

This, the Rockets' fourth victory of the year, standing against three losses, equals their total output of 1965. Routt now stands one-half game out of first place in the PMSC Conference, as Triopia beat Meredosia 53-0 yesterday.

The fired-up Bluejays bottled up the Routt running attack in the first half, allowing the Rockets only 46 yards, but Routt countered with a strong passing attack, completing six of seven aerials which enabled them to sport a 13-0 halftime lead. The third period score of Bluffs ended Routt's unscored upon streak at seven quarters. Triopia was the last team to register a score against the Rockets two weeks ago.

Routt, scoring in each quarter, opened with a 43-yard pass play with Dick Zeller hitting paydirt on a toss by Lloyd Krumlauf. Mike Sheehan dove into the end-zone for the extra point with 2:44 left to play in the first period.

Late in the second period Routt scored again. With 2:57 left to play, the Rockets got the ball on their own 40. Two completions of 16 and 39 yards to Danny Welsh and Zeller respectively put the ball on the five.
